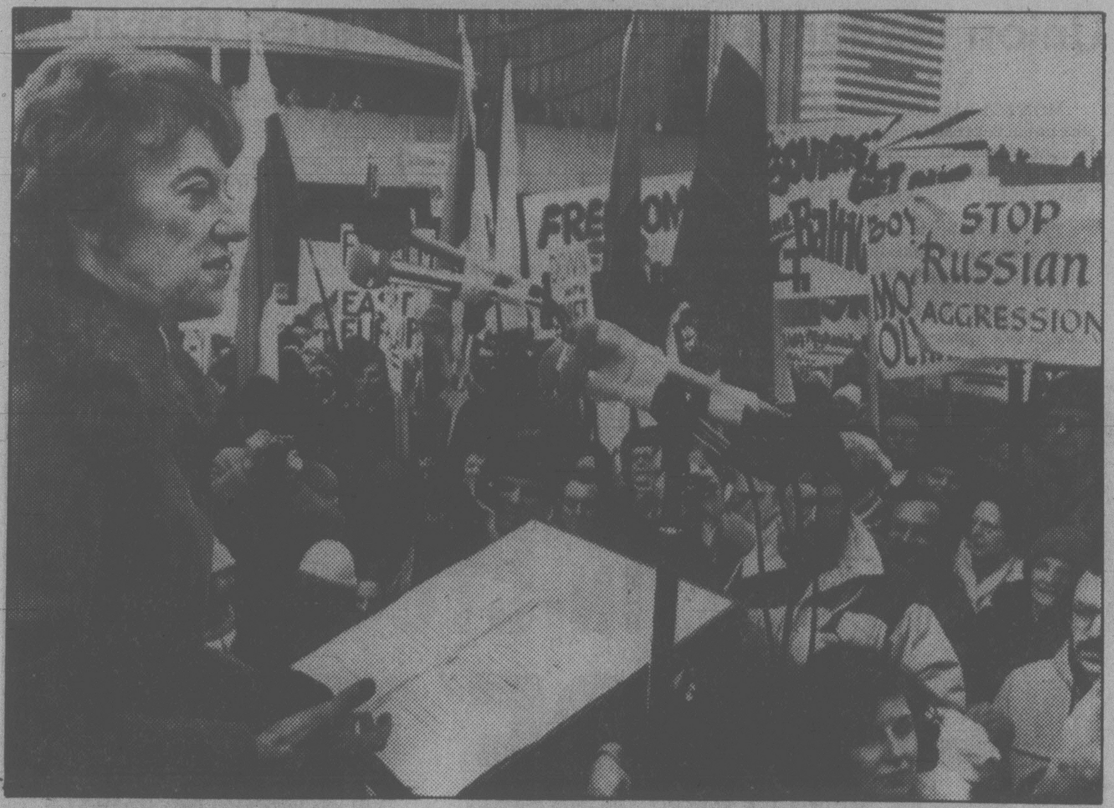
They're in the home stretch!



ANTI-SOVIET PROTESTERS listen to External Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald outside Toronto city hall Saturday where moments before some of the protestors clashed with Marxist-Leninist picketers in a placard-swinging melee. The leftists carried banners decrying Canadian, American and Soviet imperialism while MacDonald and other speakers denounced the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and treatment of dissidents. MacDonald said Canada needs military clout to deal with the Soviet Union and added that a Tory government favored beefing up Canada's commitment to NATO.

By The Canadian Press

After taking Sunday off to recharge their batteries, leaders of the major political parties charge into the home stretch of the Feb. 18 federal election campaign today.

It was to be the last rest for any of them until election day as they criss-cross the country in search of votes, but concentrating on voter-rich southern Ontario where most observers expect the election to be won or lost.

Clark's biggest task is to overcome a series of opinion polls that throughout the campaign have shown his party trailing the Liberals by a wide margin and himself trailing both Trudeau and Broadbent as the people's choice for leader.

He has consistently played down the value of such polls, saying the only important one will be held Feb. 18, while maintaining that he and his workers remain confident the party will form a majority government after the vote.

Trudeau and his advisers are faced with an entirely different problem — overconfidence — much as they did in 1972 when they thought they had an easy win over the Progressive Conservatives then led by Robert Standield. They coasted home in that one, but to a minority rather than the majority they expected.

The most recent of the polls shows the Liberals with 48 per cent of committed voters compared with 31 per cent for the Conservatives and 20 per cent for the NDP.

So Trudeau this week will throw off the shackles the party has had on him throughout the campaign so far and will attempt to imbue his workers with a renewed sense of urgency, counting down the days left in the campaign.

Maintaining his position as power-broker in the next Parliament is Broadbent's task, hoping to form a strong enough bloc in a minority government to control the direction it takes.

His consistent theme since the government was defeated Dec. 13 is that the Liberals showed they couldn't govern in 11 years of trying, the Conservatives showed it in seven months and now its time the NDP had a chance to prove its worth.

Clark is in Vancouver, Saskatoon and Winnipeg today while Trudeau hits Quebec City, Levis, Que., and Toronto and Broadbent visits Toronto.

Meanwhile, a poll conducted for FP News Services and the Toronto Sun by National Polling Trends indicates that if voting patterns of the past prevail — and if there are no dramatic campaign upsets — Canadians will almost certainly have a minority, or perhaps majority, Liberal government after the Feb. 18 general election.

The poll indicates a strong likelihood of the Liberals picking up a majority of Metro Toronto's 23 seats. In every election in recent history — with the exception of 1962 — Toronto has given a majority of its seats to the party that carried the country. That is why the area is regarded as critical by all parties; it is the national bellwether. It is also the hub of the southern Ontario electoral region.

Dental fee hike of 12% urged

A general fee increase of 12 per cent for dental work plus a surcharge of up to $3 per filling has been recommended to B.C. dentists by the provincial college of dental surgeons.

President Dr. Ted Ramage of Vancouver said today the fee increase will take effect March 1. It is a recommended fee guide, but dentists are not bound to follow it.

The filling surcharge was imposed for the first time because of the rapidly rising price of silver. Dr. Ramage said it may be eliminated — or increased — depending on further fluctuations in the price of the precious metal.

"We wanted to have the option of putting it up and down without interfering with our fee guide," said Dr. Ramage.

The new fee guide will put the cost of an average six-month checkup and cleaning of teeth for an adult to $35.60. A large filling in a permanent molar for an adult will cost $35, plus a $3 surcharge.

A medium-sized filling in the same tooth would run about $25 plus $2 and a small filling would be $15 plus $1.50, he said.

Dr. Ramage said the new fee guide usually takes effect Jan. 1 each year, but for a variety of reasons, it was postponed to March 1 this year. Measured year over year, the new guide calls for an increase of 10 per cent but as of March 1 it will amount to a 12 per cent hike.

The college has conducted an intensive study over the last two years of the costs associated with the profession, he said, which has determined that a dentist's costs have risen 26 per cent since 1978 due to inflation, rising interest rates and the cost of supplies.

Scores more may get parole

By DEREK SIDENIUS

Scores of prisoners in provincial jails may wind up serving the balance of their sentences in the community on parole when the new B.C. Parole Board starts operating.

The board, set up last October, is expected to begin processing parole applications later this month.

While it's not known just how many inmates will qualify, prison officials say the reconstituted board will have a tremendous impact on the overcrowded, over burdened provincial corrections system.

Bill Jack, regional director of provincial corrections on Vancouver Island, said in an interview he welcomes the move and hopes the new board will take an aggressive approach.

He noted the majority of offenders on the Island are serving sentences of less than six months and "the majority of those could be functioning in the community if we had a parole board functioning."

The savings to the taxpayers would be substantial. It costs upwards of $16,000 a year to keep a man in jail.

The average daily headcount in provincial jails is about 1,800, of which 500 to 600 are in custody awaiting trial.

Jack said once an inmate has served a third of his sentence he will be entitled to apply for parole. In cases where the inmate has been convicted of a violent offence the minimum waiting period is half the sentence.

Until now practically all paroles have been handled by the National Parole Board.

The only exceptions were cases involving young offenders between 17 and 21 sentenced to indefinite or indeterminant sentences. Paroles in those cases were decided by the provincial board.

The national board has traditionally concentrated more on the federal institutions, where persons sentenced to more than two years are sent.

Because of that inmates in provincial centres felt they were being ignored. Early release was often only possible by way of a temporary absence pass.

When the federal government abolished indeterminant sentences last year, the decision was made to expand not only the role of the provincial parole boards but its size too.

The former six-man board is expected to have as many as 20 to 28 members drawn from the community and be responsible for making decisions in each of the six corrections regions in the province.

The new board has jurisdiction over all cases except where an inmate is serving a life or commuted death sentence or has been deemed a habitual criminal or dangerous sexual offender. Those matters remain under the federal board.

The supervision of the parole program rests with the provincial corrections branch. Last November the branch invited the John Howard Societies in B.C. to take over or share in the reponsibility of running the program.

But the society members haven't exactly rushed in to accept the offer.

As Willie Blonde, executive director of the John Howard Society of Vancouver Island explained, there is apprehension over what effect the parole work would have on other society programs.

The Island group held a weekend forum at the University of Victoria to discuss the pros and cons of making the move.

Coflin said the society opted out of parole work three years ago and doesn't regret the decision as parole supervision was felt inappropriate aims.

The local society members will decide whether to take up the corrections branch offer at its March general meeting.

Tide grip fatal to scuba diver

Sidney RCMP said John Warren Stelck of 979 Cloverdale was diving with a companion, Jerome Hunter, 27, of 1722 Sparwood, when he was caught in a strong tide and swept to his death.

Hunter told police he and Stelck had been diving near Strong Tide Island and were making their way to shore when he suddenly realized his companion was not with him.

He searched unsuccessfully and called for help from two women who were diving for abalone.

Trudy Carson, 26, and Maria Byrne, 23, both of the Victoria area, found Stelck's body on the bottom, got him to the surface where they hauled him into their boat and brought him to shore at the foot of Baynes Road.

Police said the women applied artifical respiration but were unable to revive Stelck.

A doctor living nearby was called and pronounced the diver dead at the scene at about 5 p.m.

Police said Stelck was a qualified scuba diver but had no experience in open-water dives.

Coroner John Dravidge has ordered an autopsy and depending on the results will decide whether to hold an inquest or inquiry.

Bani-Sadr claims his plan could free hostages soon

United Press International

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said Monday the 50 American hostages in their 100th day of captivity might be freed "perhaps even in the coming days" if President Carter and Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini accept his compromise proposals.

In an interview published in Paris, the president said his plan was sent to Khomeini and he expected an answer within two days from the ailing 79-year-old religious leader. Khomeini referred to America as a "criminal" in a speech Monday, but said it might be possible to establish "ordinary relations" with the United States in the future.

In Tehran, more than 2 million people turned out for a military parade and celebration marking the first anniversary of the Islamic revolution that overthrew Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's last prime minister and ushered in Khomeini's revolutionary regime, Iran state radio said.

The radio, monitored by the BBC in London, said that due to the rush of the crowd in Azadi Square, a reviewing stand collapsed and 67 people suffered minor injuries. Neither Bani-Sadr nor PLO leader Yasser Arafat, who attended the festivities, were harmed.

Asked what were Iran's condition for the liberation of the 50 American hostages in the U.S. Embassy, Bani-Sadr said in the interview with the Paris newspaper Le Monde:

"A self-criticism in a due form concerning the crimes which they had committed in Iran during a quarter century, and the recognition of our right to win the extradition of the shah and the restitution of his fortune. We are so sure of our case, that we are ready to accept in advance the findings of an international investigation."

In Washington, State Department officials said they found the Bani-Sadr interview interesting "but murky." The officials said that the terms of reference have not been established and it is not certain what the Iranian president means by "self-criticism" by the United States.

Bani-Sadr did not disclose how Iran wanted the international investigation of the shah's alleged crimes to be carried out. He said he personally favored a merger of proposals by UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim for a UN inquiry and a parallel suggestion by former Irish Doreign Minister Sean MacBride for a new Nuremberg-style tribunal to judge

Where's voice of Victoria?

By AL FORREST

The Victoria community is paying a heavy economic price because it is not adequately represented on boards of directors of local transportation companies, Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce past president Mel Cooper said today.

"Transportation is vital to Vancouver Island and yet we have almost no voice in it at all."

Much of the current hassle over the replacement for the Marguerite, for example, could have been avoided if Victoria had a representative on the board.

The board consists of Transportation Minister Alex Fraser of the [illegible] riding, president Arthur Elworthy of Vancouver and three other directors, all of Vancouver.

Cooper said the provincial government did recognize the need for local input but only through an advisory committee, of which Cooper was a member.

"Unfortunately none of the recommendations were acted upon. It was a frustrating experience. Without representation on the board we had no real influence on policy and Victoria is paying the price."

Cooper said the advisory committee in April, 1979, strongly urged the board to find a replacement for the Marguerite.

"Nothing was done and now we are stuck with the Queen of Prince Rupert. The community is making the best of it because we have to but it can only be a temporary thing until we can find a suitable vessel."

Cooper said there has been no action on other recommendations for a longer sailing schedule, including spring and fall, not just the summer months. Scores of other marketing ideas also have been ignored.

"No one expects all ideas to be accepted but the point is our recommendations were never seriously considered. We can see now we needed representation at the board level."

In addition, the B.C. Ferries Corp., which provides a vital link for the Island, has only one Victorian among its seven directors. There is a second Vancouver Island representative, from Port Hardy.

As for private enterprise, Cooper said he believes he is the single Victoria director. He has recently been appointed to the board of Airwest Airlines.

There is no Victoria director, he said, on Pacific Western Airlines or Air Canada, although Victoria is an important market, especially for PWA.

Rhodesia politics violence growing

SALISBURY (CP) — Threats, violence and other forms of intimidation being practised by Rhodesia's political parties might seriously hinder elections later this month, says Canada's representative on the Commonwealth team of election observers.

Gordon Fairweather, Canada's human rights commissioner, said Sunday that intimidation of voters is "rife" in the southeastern region of the country where he spent the previous week.

Voters are being subjected to force and threats, and meetings of political parties have been prevented from taking place, he said in an interview.

If intimidation continues unchecked it might seriously hinder voters from expressing their free choice, he said.

But he stopped short of saying the Commonwealth observers will conclude that the elections cannot be free and fair as called for in the London peace accord.

Intimidation seems fairly evenly distributed, said Fairweather, an experienced campaigner himself who spent 15 years in the Commons as a Progressive Conservative MP.

The word intimidation has become a shorthand expression in Rhodesia to describe everything from beatings and kidnapping political opponents to getting people to election rallies at gunpoint.

At news conferences, party leaders invariably accuse opponents of unfair campaign tactics.

And last week the British governor in Rhodesia, Lord Soames, issued a special ordinance giving himself the power to restrict political meetings, to suspend candidates from campaigning and to disqualify parties from contesting a particular district if found guilty of violence.

Although Fairweather holds all parties responsible for the trouble, the British governor has concentrated his criticism on Robert Mugabe's party, the Zimbabwe African National Union.

But in the latest example of political violence Sunday, it was Mugabe who narrowly escaped death when a large, remote-controlled bomb planted in a road culvert exploded just seconds after his car sped by. No one claimed responsibility for the blast in the southern town of Fort Victoria, which officials said could have blown his car to bits.

Soames, meanwhile, has justified the deployment in rural areas of Rhodesian auxiliary troops loyal to another candidate, Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the prime minister in the last government.

Fairweather said the mere presence of large numbers of armed auxiliary troops constitutes a form of intimidation, a criticism Soames has not taken kindly to in the past.

It is a tough job monitoring this election — Rhodesia's first legitimate attempt to hold a free vote as far as the international community is concerned.

In the Victoria area of southeastern Rhodesia, Fairweather said observers have found schools closed, hospitals burned and evidence of anthrax among cattle because chemical diptanks have been destroyed by seven years of guerrilla warfare.

Same as last May at advance poll

About 700 voters cast ballots Saturday in the first day of advance polling in the federal riding of Victoria, about the same as last May, returning officer Eleanor Allen said today.

Advance polling continues today and Tuesday from noon to 8 p.m. at St. Andrew's church 643 Broughton Street.

Esquimalt-Saanich reported a small decline on the first advance voting day — 825 ballots versus 846 last year. Advance voting there is at three locations: Esquimalt recreation centre, 527 Fraser; Garth Home centre, 813 Darwin or Sanscha hall on Beacon Avenue in Sidney.

Residents of the western community who are in Cowichan-Malahat riding have to travel to Juan de Fuca recreation centre. If you live in Sooke, there's an advance poll at Sooke community hall.

Avalanche kills five in Norway

SIRDAL, Norway (UPI) — An avalanche hit a group of 21 students on a ski holiday in southern Norway, killing five 18-year-old men, police said today.

Ten in the group were buried under the tons of snow that crashed down the mountain Sunday afternoon. Five of them were quickly pulled out by fellow skiers, but the five others died, police said.

Members of the group notified police who dispatched a helicopter from the Solna rescue station near Stravanger, but high winds and heavy snow made their work difficult.

Red Cross workers helped in the search. One body was recovered a few hours after the accident, but the remaining four were not found until late Sunday.

Union leaders back offer to Quebec teachers

MONTREAL (CP) — Leaders of the union representing 73,000 striking teachers agreed early today to recommend that its members accept the government's latest contract offers.

The Centrale de l'Enseignement du Quebec has scheduled general meetings for its members to vote on the offer, starting today with Montreal-area teachers. The strike began two weeks ago.

The decision by the approximately 150 union local presidents came in a dramatic turn-around in negotiations, which seemed doomed the day before.

On Friday union officials had called the government's package unacceptable. By Saturday night negotiations had broken off and the government was threatening teachers with back-to-work legislation. But new offers on work-load clauses were apparently made in last-minute talks.

The main issue in the dispute, which has affected about a million elementary and secondary school students, centred on the fight by teachers to keep their jobs in the face of declining enrolment and the government's desire for more control over education and the day-to-day activities of teachers.

BIRDS OF A FEATHER may flock together but this pigeon, named Walter, found his best friends among the Sidney Silver Threads group. Walter was found with a broken wing and the Silver Threads members took him to a veterinarian for patching up. Next stop was the Victoria branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals for recovery. Walter will be released in Sidney when he's mended. (Bill Halkett photo).

U cartel papers kept under wraps

TORONTO (UPC) — Prime Minister Joe Clark's cabinet decided not to release documents related to an alleged international uranium cartel the day the minority Tory government was defeated, a Toronto newspaper has reported.

The Toronto Sun, in its Sunday edition, said former Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau had papers relating to the cartel "sealed in trust," keeping them from the Conservative government that succeeded his administration.

"We never did see the (Liberal) cabinet's discussions on the cartel," the Sun quoted Treasury Board President Sinclair Stevens as saying.

The newspaper said that Trudeau's action, combined with "tremendous pressure" from the governments of Britain and Australia, led the Conservative cabinet to decide against making public the information it had.

The Conservatives made an election promise in last year's campaign to reveal the cartel papers. However, no papers were made public, and the Conservative government did not repeal a 1977 law that made it illegal to discuss the cartel. However, that law had been changed to apply only to civil servants.

At issue was an arrangement involving Canada, France, South Africa, Australia and Britain in which western uranium prices were allegedly fixed between 1972 and 1975. Prices for "yellowcake" uranium rose from $4.50 to $25 per pound during that period. They are currently $40 per pound.

The cartel was reportedly organized with the cooperation of the powerful Rothschild group of companies.

The Sun said an important figure behind the scenes was Jacques Foccart, former head of several French security agencies. The paper added that another French security official suspected Foccart of being a Soviet agent.

Under the cartel arrangement, Canada got one third of the western uranium market during its five-year existence, the Sun said, adding that the Trudeau cabinet granted its approval "in the highest national interest."

Boycott petition

VERNON (CP) — A Canadian National Railways employee, who says the Olympic Games should not be used as a political forum, estimates 15,000 signatures have been collected on a petition he organized to protest any boycott of the 1980 Games in Moscow.

Ralph Chapman of Vernon started the petition in Kamloops last week and distributed it to CN employees across Canada.

"We are hoping this petition will give the government some sense of direction and put an end to any boycott. It is our money that they are playing with and they can't just do what they want," Chapman said.

Woman strangled

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police have identified Nashter Dhahan, 25, as the woman found strangled Saturday in a city lane.

No arrests have been made.

It was the third murder in the city in three days. On Thursday, two men were fatally stabbed. Police charged a Surrey, B.C., man with manslaughter in one of those deaths.

Nurse shortage

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Community College and the University of B.C. have applied to the provincial government for a total of $186,000 to help provide training aimed at easing a shortage of critical care nurses.

The college wants $86,000 for a two-level critical care program while UBC wants $100,000 for a three-month course that would place trainees in local hospitals.

Political break-in?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Staff at the Chinese consulate in Vancouver said Sunday that a robbery Friday night at the consulate was politically motivated.

City police disagree, however, saying it was a routine robbery.

Police said two masked men armed with a club and a knife broke into the consulate, and tied and gagged an electrician on duty.

Offices and bedrooms were ransacked. Police said cash and minor items were stolen.

Proposed dam worries feds

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal Environment Minister John Fraser and Fisheries Minister James McGrath are concerned about potential environmental effects of the proposed Kemano II dam in northwestern B.C.

The dam is part of a major development the Aluminum Co. of Canada announced last year for a new $2.5 billion smelter development at Kitimat.

"I am not going to prejudge the case, for I have not seen the proposals," Fraser said in an interview, "but if it came to a fight between the provincial government and Alcan, we would side with the government"

Fraser said Saturday that the federal government will scrutinize project proposals submitted by Alcan.

He said McGrath is concerned about the project's potential affect on fish spawning grounds and will discuss federal concerns with provincial Environment Minister Stephen Rogers.

Fraser said any environmental impact studies submitted by Alcan will be reviewed by the government which could ask for further or different studies.

In 1950, B.C. gave Alcan water rights for the Kemano project on a long-term lease. Last week, however, the B.C. government announced a new provincial power policy under which the Crown-owned B.C. Hydro would generally be responsible for building any such dams.

Alcan officials say the agreement still is valid.

Special prisoners to Kent

NEW WESTMINSTER, (CP) — Federal prison officials say they will be forced to use a portion of the Kent Maximum Security Institute at Agassiz to house protective custody prisoners.

One unit will be used for protective custody prisoners awaiting court appearances.

Earlier in the week, several protective custody prisoners expressed concern that they may be in danger from the general population in Kent prison. Most protective custody prisoners are sex offenders or are thought by others to be informants.

Political debt paid

VANCOUVER (CP) — Donald Macdonald, former Liberal finance minister, says he campaigned Sunday in Vancouver Centre to "pay off a debt" to Liberal candidate Art Phillips.

Macdonald was one of 165 people who attended a $125-a-plate dinner Sunday for Phillips, who represented the riding during the last Parliament.

He said Phillips supported him during the "shortest leadership campaign in history," the time between Pierre Trudeau decided to resign as party leader last fall and his rapid change of mind after the fall of the government in December.

And although party officials such as Senator Ray Perrault were introducing Macdonald as "the man who would make an outstanding leader of the Liberal party," Macdonald downplayed the possibility.

Pin a price on oil

Pinning a price for oil on the Liberal Party is harder than playing pin the tail on the donkey. Even when a masked participant does hit the appropriate spot, the donkey's rump wiggles out from underneath.

The participants in this game are media members, ever persistant in asking Pierre Trudeau to divulge what the price for domestic oil will be under a Liberal government. After repeated questioning by a Toronto television interviewer this week, Trudeau relented and said Liberals would raise oil prices no more than $3 a barrel.

Well, that wasn't exactly specific when one considers that for each $1 hike in the oil price, there is a four-cent boost a gallon boost at the gas pump. But up until then, it was a far sight better than no indiction at all.

The satisfaction of knowing the Liberal price was short lived. "It was a slip," cried Patrick Gossage, Trudeau's press spokesman. "We have not changed our position." Gossage went on to reiterate Liberal policy of determining the price of oil after the election based on a blend of costs to produce various oil types. The tail is bumped from the rump.

The Liberals' position on oil prices remains preposterous. After 11 years in government, setting oil prices in conjuction with the producing provinces, Liberal must have an idea of production costs for conventional, synthetic and offshore oil. But even if they see no reason to do some pre-election homework, Trudeau has yet to explain how he intends to find a "made in Canada" price for oil and keep another promise of not increasing the federal deficit.

Canada is importing 25 per cent of its oil needs. And last year the federal government spent $1.8 billion dollars in equalization subsidies to eastern Canada. This year the subsidy will reach $2.7 billion, even if the exporting nations do not increase the price farther.

Unless Canadian oil prices rise and part of the revenue is used to offset foreign oil prices, the country's energy deficit will continue to grow. The Tories at least attempted to deal with that issue.

Tests for drivers

The recommendation by the attorney-general's ministry that all motor vehicle accident victims be tested for alcohol in their blood is, with some adjustments, worthy of endorsement.

There has long been concern that drinking drivers who become involved in minor accidents are nearly always caught through breath analysis tests while those who suffer even minor injuries often escape detection. The reason for this is that the law, quite reasonably, demands that a breath analysis test be taken within two hours of the apprehension of a suspected drinking driver.

By the time an injured driver has been taken to the emergency ward, however, and has been given even routine treatment, such as the stitching of a cut, the two-hour limit has often elapsed. Without the breath analysis for evidence, police often find it impossible to press charges.

The ministry's recommendation would overcome that problem by taking a sample of every victim's blood and testing it for alcohol. The results of that test would be just as valid as any breath analysis in a court case.

The recommendation comes after a study of 728 accident victims, including drivers, passengers, cyclists and pedestrians. The study showed that of 410 drivers tested, 106, or more than 25 per cent, had blood alcohol readings over the legal limit, but the police had charged only 18.

It may be argued that the injury itself should be considered enough punishment for drinking-and-driving, and indeed a judge might decide that a painful or incapacitating injury might be grounds for reducing the fine or other punishment. What the injury will not do, however, is get the drinking driver off the road for a specific time period during which he will not be able to repeat the offence. That can be achieved only by a court conviction and suspension of his licence.

The only place the ministry may be going too far is in its recommendation that passengers also be blood-tested. The study suggests that the testing of passengers can be helpful to doctors in determining the diagnosis of injuries. However, no passenger is under any legal requirement to remain sober. Any tests should surely be a matter of appropriate treatment as decided by a doctor, not a matter of legal requirement.

The attorney-general's ministry would receive credit if it introduced at the forthcoming session of the legislature a bill to allow the blood-testing of injured drivers.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

Taking the nation's pulse

In these last days of political befuddlement Canadian statesmen could learn more about the nation's mood on our rural bus line than they will ever find in the Gallup poll. The trip of half an hour to the city always clarifies the mind, especially when a certain aged passenger is aboard, his right eye focused on essentials, his left one, of glass, aimed slightly eastward.

Let's not talk about the election (he said this morning). Let's talk about women — good women. Anyway, I'm too old to think about the other kind. A pity. Now don't misunderstand me. I'm no chauvenist pig, only a shorn lamb in a cold wind. I wouldn't stop women voting if they'd stop talking about it all day and night. No, women are the superior, wiser, brighter sex, practically immortal. But mysterious, very.

Indifferent to Clark

Half of them are in love — all platonic of course — with Trudeau and the other half just hate him. Joe Clark is a happily married man and, naturally, uninteresting to a woman, like her rich, boring brother-in-law in Sarnia who's got as much sex appeal as Statistics Canada. No one but Freud could explain these mysteries and he's dead.

Why is this bus crowded? Because women must go to town and buy something, no matter what. If there was nothing in the stores but glass beads, blankets and tin kettles the women would rush in and buy them like the Indians in the days of the fur trade.

And they must travel, no matter where. If the government stopped them going to Hawaii or Florida to save foreign exchange they'd flock to Medicine Hat or Ungava. Anything to get away and spend their money. Oh yes, they have to spend but the funny thing is they always balance their budgets and no government can do it.

And another funny thing is that they're deciduous, like maple trees shedding leaves in the autumn. They shed everything and litter the bathroom with wet stockings and what-nots till a man can't get near the mirror to shave.

When a woman empties her purse to find the house key enough junk pours out to stock a big second-hand store. In the last war, in Boston, the government collected discarded hair pins and used the metal to build two battleships. The figures may have been a little exaggerated. Perhaps it was only one battleship. But the story was essentially true, which is more than you can say for the election speeches.

I'm telling you I've wasted at least five years of my life waiting for the missus to put on her gloves and lipstick and five more standing in some supermarket while she paws through the merchandise. Ecstasy for her, torture for any normal man.

Not that she wants or needs all the stuff. She'll usually shed it when she gets home and discovers that the shoes don't fit and the dress is the wrong color. But what of it? She's had her fun, cheap at the price. God bless her.

And God save the poor politician. He has to travel with a speech writer, the richer ones with a hairdresser, and the smartest ones with a hired thinker. You never know where national policy comes from but who cares? Only Pierre and Joe count. And Pierre has taped his lips for fear of saying something and Joe's voice is drowned out by Gallup and Fotheringham.

So what have we got in all the clamor? Two solitudes till polling day. Can we stand it that long?

Well, Trudeau's the only leader on human record who promises, hand on heart, to quit as soon as he's back in office. That should guarantee his election. And Clark's the only leader who promises to stay on the job and dares to raise taxes and turn the budget around. In the present state of public intelligence that's suicide.

Maybe I'm not intelligent so I'll vote Conservative, holding my nose with a clothes pin like my Liberal friends. The clothes pin industry must be booming, eh?

But you have to think hard about the proper qualifications of a prime minister. The way I get it, he must be able to swim, scuba dive, ski, dance in New York discos, grin modestly at TV cameras, kiss pretty girls, and recite extemporaneous wise cracks written in the underground wit factory and rehearsed before a looking glass.

Or else he must come from a small town in the Alberta foothills and love horses and beef on the hoof. If he knows simple arithmetic and can add up the billions of the deficit that won't hurt, but it's not important in a democracy.

Then you come to foreign policy if you have the stomach for it. So Carter suddenly finds that Brezhnev isn't a nice guy after all and the nations of Western Europe scream Yanks go home but be ready to return whenever we need you and don't forget to bring your bombs.

No, Europe will never forgive the Yanks for saving it in two wars and the Marshall Plan. That's a law of human nature as any psychologist will tell you.

But there's a few bright spots in the news. A radio man in Los Angeles has eaten crow, real crow, cooked feathers and all, to settle a bet. He lived, too, and that's important because the Canadian pundits will be on the same diet after the election.

Rhino terror

And my old pal, Jim Merryfield, got himself nominated by the Rhinos just for the hell of it after a couple of drinks and the polls show he's going to be elected. The poor guy is terrified but his wife is looking at evening dresses to wear at the governor-general's receptions. Ah, women!

The Rhinos think they've invented the best jokes, but if they want to propose the final, supreme, impossible dream let them promise to balance the budget and the nation will die laughing. Then I'll vote Rhino, but the missus keeps voting for Pierre. Why? Ask Freud or Gallup. Better, ask Fotheringham. He lives inside a typewriter inside an airplane inside a vacuum so he knows the answers to everything, almost. But women? Not even Foth. Well, so long. See you in the brave new world, post-election, that is.

Victoria Landmarks

That the Greater Victoria area has Monkey Puzzle trees is partly due to Captain George Vancouver and his official naturalist, Archibald Menzies.

In 1790, the British government, appointing Menzies as Vancouver's naturalist, instructed him to dig up any curious or valuable plants observed in the countries they visited, and to plant them in a glass frame especially constructed on the ship's quarter deck.

At a formal dinner in Chile, Menzies noticed and secretly pocketed some unfamiliar nuts, and, planting them in the glass frame, had five healthy young Monkey Puzzle trees when they returned home. The first such trees to be introduced into Britain, one of the five originals survived at Kew until 1892.

Monkey Puzzle trees became a status symbol in nineteenth century gardens in Britain, and it was natural that British settlers coming to Victoria should want such a tree as a reminder of "home".

That's a partial list. Alert drivers or walkers can certainly find more. But do not trespass. Just observe!

European life

I wonder if Mrs. Frieda Kerfoot, whom in her letter (Jan. 29) tried to scare the voters off socialism, would be so kind to disclose which country she is talking about. Western Europe consists of about 10 countries, several of them with a government based on socialist ideologies but certainly not all with the same regulations and rules.

For instance, I have never heard of sales tax on a house in the Netherlands. I did learn just last week however from my nieces that young people can get a 100 per cent or even 125 per cent mortgage when buying a home. When my father died my mother was told nothing about what "she should have been living on". They both had a federal pension because of my father's position as well as the old age pension. My mother still has both and receives more than 2,000 guilders ($1,200) per month after tax deductions. Pensions are reviewed every year and adjusted to the inflation. The children's allowance is doubled when a child goes on to study after high school and that, if he/she attends a university out of town and lives away from home, the allowance is tripled.

As for lost parcels, unless one has a copy of the registration of the mailing, the postal service here just shrugs its shoulders, and in the Netherlands there are no such measures as Mrs. Kerfoot is writing about.

As for expatriates "flocking back," Many from my country came about 30 years ago for various reasons: adventure, "the Russians are coming", shortage of housing, beautiful stories about Canada (which didn't pan out), etc. Why should we go back to get an old age pension twice as large as here and leave our children and great grand children and established home behind? This does not mean that people in many countries in Western Europe are "taken care of from cradle to grave." This is a well-known truth and has, sadly enough, made many of them demanding and lazy. — Ms. E. Roelofsen-Hoogewooning, 1870 Neil Street.

Both wrong

I noted this paragraph in your lively column "Town Talk" on Jan. 25:

'We'd like to herewith settle forever an argument on how Brannan — Brannen Lake should be spelled. The correct spelling is Brannen. That's the word from the provincial maps and surveys branch. The lake is named after John Brannen, the first person to farm this area, 3 miles northwest of Nanaimo. Brannan apparently crept into maps in the 1920s, the result of an anonymous draftsman's error.'

Well, I suppose the second spelling is more nearly correct than the first. Alas, they're both wrong. As a third-generation Nanaimoite whose grandfather settled at Northfield in 1863, I can assure you that there never was anyone there by the name of either Brannan or Brannen. So far as I've been able to find out, such names don't even exist. The name was Brennan; and there are still people of that name in the locality — or there were up 'til 1972 when I was living in Nanaimo.

The 'anonymous draftsman' (and he was lucky to be able to preserve his anonymity!) was making mistakes right and left in the 1920s.

The second spelling, Brannen, came about through a provincial civil servant, who, being told by an ex-Nanaimoite fellow-employee that the name should be spelled with an e instead of an a, declared that she would get it corrected, but changed the second a instead of the first one.

No doubt it's far too late now to hope the error will ever be righted, but I'm glad of the chance to speak out on it, as it's been a pebble in my shoe for many years. — A. A. Brown, 1202-435 Michigan Street.

Dan's gift

In actuality, this is a letter to Arthur Mayse:

Do you wish to start a petition or some like form of protest regarding "Dan's gift" (your column, Jan. 28)? If so, be assured, our names will stand as tall and as black as possible behind you. Scholarship? — most definitely yes! yes!

Hall of Fame? — be doubled (tripled if necessary) damned!! — George and Marie Forslund, 3330 Ravenwood.

Incomprehensible

The recent decision by the government to switch the two vessels, Queen of Prince Rupert and Queen of Surrey (formerly the Stena Danica) completely around, is almost incomprehensible.

The Queen of Surrey was built in 1969 for a primarily day run between Gothernburg (Sweden) and Stettin in Germany with a capacity of 1,040 passengers and some 157 cars and a service speed of 23 kn. and with an overall length of 410 ft.

The government then spent a few million dollars of taxpayers money to convert her into an overnight vessel for the northern run because she didn't have enough cabins when they already had the Queen of Prince Rupert especially designed for that run with a berthing capacity of some 274 for overnight service and room for fewer cars which they don't need on that run.

The government then took the latter and spent some more money to convert the Queen of Prince Rupert into a day ferry, still leaving the northern run with only one vessel. It simply doesn't make any sense, but then one has grown used to these ridiculous decisions by this government on shipping matters.

The argument that the Queen of Surrey is too large to come into the Inner Harbor is not valid. She is only 36 feet longer than the Princess Marguerite and is fitted with a bow thruster.

So we now will have a 15-year-old, smaller, ordinary type of passenger-carferry not designed for that type of run when we could have used the Queen of Surrey without converting her interior and far more luxury fitted, for the type of run, more or less, that she was designed for. — A. Christoffersen, 1286 Loenholm Road.

Impressions

Visitor impressions: climate delightful, city clean and friendly. Why a 20 cent penalty on phone calls by some motels? Bus fares should be 15 cents for all seniors. Flotsam in harbor should be removed, some is a navigation hazard.

Keep quiet

Whoever heard of an embassy refusing to give asylum to nationals of a friendly country?

The Canadian ambassador and all the staff concerned had a difficult and risky duty to perform under dangerous circumstances and they did it very well indeed. For this they are to be praised.

It is, however too bad, in my humble opinion that the politicians and media couldn't keep quiet for a while longer. — P. J. Vaucher, 2715 Seaview Road.

That word

I was appalled to read the press coverage of a meeting at Capital Region's Planning and Economic Development Committee (held on January 30, 1980), in which it was alleged I used the word "nigger".

The fact is (and the minutes indicate) that my purpose was to comment on the absence of a woman and to argue that the Women's Employment Committee had a valid point which should be considered.

The alleged racial slur is a more difficult matter. I understand that your reporters (who sit in a corner of the boardroom) still insist they heard "that word". All I can say is I did not use it, nor did those sitting closest to me at the board table hear me say it.

MEL COUVELIER
. . .deeply offended

I am deeply offended by the suggestion that such a comment could be made by myself. I sincerely hope my history of public commitment to certain principles would result in your readers concluding that it would be "totally out of character". — Mayor Mel Couvelier, Saanich.

Loose dogs

It is no doubt difficult to enforce the bylaw (I think there is one) that requires dog-owners to keep their pets on the leash when on city streets, but there are far too many dogs in this area which are allowed to roam at will. Last week I was knocked down by a large dog which bounded up behind me and caught me unawares. By some miracle I did not break any bones, but I am suffering considerable unnecessary pain and discomfort just because of one thoughtless dog-owner. Perhaps if a few people were fined for letting their pets run loose, it might improve the situation.

I would like to give highest praise and grateful thanks to ambulance attendants, nurses, X-ray technicians and doctors at the Victoria General Hospital, from whom I received nothing but courtesy, kindness and consideration. We are certainly fortunate in this city to have such wonderful people to care for us. — Mrs. G. A. Clarke, 1-209 Cook Street.

Pettifogging

What's in an insult? Fun, if it uses an offbeat word.

Speaking for the Soviet bloc in the United Nations General Assembly, Leonid Dolguchits, chief delegate of the Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, was roundly denouncing the "campaign of slander and lying" by the United States following the liberation of Afghanistan. After a few paragraphs of boilerplate condemnation, he zapped the "American-Chinese pettifogging complaint."

Pettifogging?

The Russian word used by Dolguchits is transliterated as klauza, pronounced "klow-oo-zah." "It is not a frequently used word," reports Stephen Pearl, the UN interpreter who chose "pettifogging" to translate klauza into English. He adds, "There is no obvious rendering."

In 17 years at the UN, the interpreter recalls encountering the word fewer than 10 times.

O'HARA . . . golden ear

Pearl helpfully passed along an example of a klauza given him by a Soviet colleague: "A Moscovite filing a complaint about a neighbor making too much noise — even though the neighbor was innocent — would be involved in a klauza. The complainant would be called a klauznik. The meaning is 'a petty complaint inspired by bad motives, and connected to the letter of the law.' "

In English, "pettifogging" is defined by most dictionaries as "malicious, underhanded," with a second meaning of "quibbling over insignificant details." The word is used to insult lawyers who use the letter of the law to subvert what the insulter considers to be the spirit of the law. In current American use, the connotation of trickery and deceit has been overwhelmed by the specific meaning of using technicalities to filibuster. "Pettifogging" is now as closely wedded to "delay" as "unmitigated" is to "gall."

The word sounds as if it came from a combination of "to befog the issue" with "petty details." Not so. Most dictionaries hold that the origin of "fogger" is obscure, but the Oxford English Dictionary suggests that the term probably comes from a family of German merchants and financiers renowned for their methods of cheating in the 15th and 16th centuries.

Aw-ri-i-ight!

The sound most often made by happy discocrats is "Aw-ri-i-ight!"

Black athletes may have originated the locution, which is often spoken while a hand slap is substituted for a handshake, first up, then down. The combination of word and gesture seams to mean, "That's cool," or, "Nice goin'," or, "Look-a-me, I'm on top of the world."

The word sounds like "awry," as in "What has gone awry?" The origin, presumably, is "all right," but the "ll" is silent, the "i" is drawn out and sometimes the "t" is clipped. Oldsters who try to pick up on ("pick up on" is upbeat-music slang) teenagers' lingo often err in pronouncing the "ll" sound, a sure sign of cultural ignorance. I tried it, and my daughter sympathized with "That's aw-wrong!"

Copacetic

If you're feeling aw-ri-i-ight but do not want to act as if you are in your second childhood, you might try an old slang term that is enjoying a rebirth: "copacetic." It means "fine; no complaints; hunky-dory; cool."

There is a touch of restraint in the word: when everything is copacetic, all is sailing smoothly, but it's not "excellent," "fantastic" or "terrific," those ecstacies of yesteryear.

The word's origin is a mystery. The Oxford English Dictionary supplement tracks it to 1919, in a book by Irving Addison Bacheller: " 'As to looks I'd call him, as ye might say, real copasetic.' Mrs. Lukins expressed this opinion solemnly . . . Its last word stood for nothing more than an indefinite depth of meaning." Go figure that out. In 1926, the word was spelled "kopasetee" in a book about the black middle class by Carl Van Vechten, and defined therein as "an approbatory epithet somewhat stronger than all right." In 1934, that writer with the golden ear, John O'Hara, used it in Appointment in Samarra, and in 1937 American Speech magazine suggested that the term was "used by Negroes in the South."

Why should the vocabulary of approyal, the lexicon of good feeling, be so shrouded? Why can't we find the origin of the words that express our contentment? It's not copacetic; on the contrary, it's aw-wrong.

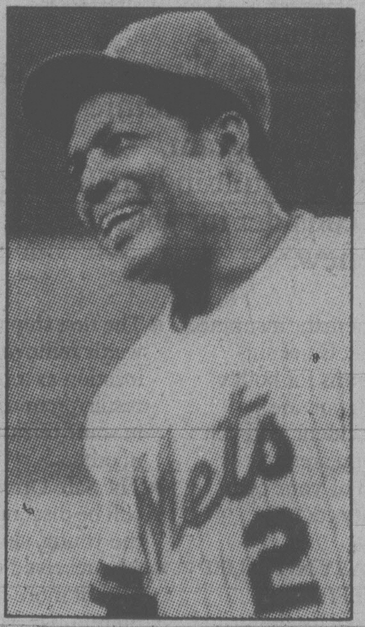
Heyday

If we were to back down on our Iranian sanctions, opined a Washington editorialist, "Soviet propagandists . . . would have a heyday."

That did not have the right ring; I think the writer meant "field day."

A "field day," as might be supposed, is a day spent in the fields — a class outing, especially connected with sports, its metaphoric meaning rooted in winning the competition of that day. To have a field day is to win, gloriously, in any field of endeavor, indoors or out.

A "heyday" — probably from "high day" — implies a longer period, a time of life rather than a single momentous occasion. We can expect the word to come into vogue as a result of its use by Dore Schary as the title of his memoirs, and by Linda DuBreuil as the title of her paperback novel. Schary, the former screenwriter and movie-studio head, cites lexicographer Samuel Johnson's definition: "an expression of frolic and exhultation, and sometimes wonder." That shouted expression — a predecessor of Willie Mays' "Say, hey" — turned into the noun used by Shakespeare in Hamlet: "At your age the heyday in the blood is tame, it's humble."



MAYS . . . 'say, hey'

Keep your eye on the article that precedes the noun: it is usually a field day, and the heyday. Remember: one field day does not the heyday make.

Strong Second

Even before his victory over Ronald Reagan in the Iowa caucuses, candidate George Bush was described by columnist Mary McGrory as being in "the front-runner's position for second place" in the long race for the Republican presidential nomination.

Political savant Richard Moore considers that to be an authentic political oxymoron, like "loyal opposition" and "unthinkable thoughts." When Bush "broke out of the pack" — the ringing cliche, after Iowa — his position became, at the least, the chief challenger to President Carter's chief challenger.

A neologism is needed — just a temporary language fix, really — to describe the scramble for second place that precedes the scramble for first place. A suggestion: "front runner-up."

West facing 'a terrible choice'

By JACQUES-YVES COUSTEAU

(Oceanographer Cousteau is the author of a number of books, including The Sea in Danger. He wrote this for The Los Angeles Times)

Each day's grim headlines underscore one nagging, persistent fact: Western countries are almost helpless in the face of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' decisions. By mismanagement of resources, by lack of foresight, lack of courage and lack of unity among Atlantic Alliance nations, they are now in a situation in which a sudden drop in the availability of oil menaces the world with the threat of impending war, perhaps even of nuclear holocaust.

The West is faced with a terrible choice: Energy shortages may hurtle Western nations into a war likely to kill an inconceivable number of people, or hasty energy developments may endanger the water system so necessary for life.

Energy and water problems cannot be separated. Power plants, whether thermal or nuclear, bring about heat pollution in rivers and in the sea. Hydro-electric dams often affect climate and environment. Oil slicks damage shorelines and marine life. Short-term energy alternatives — gasification of coal, tar sands and most notably shale oil — will require vast quantities of water and raise serious pollution problems.

The Western world has locked itself into a water-energy-defense triangle, and must find its way to freedom without causing irreversible damage.

The hard facts are an eloquent indictment of all governments of industrialized nations. They stand accused of pusillanimity and criminal negligence. The major oil producers, mostly Moslem nations, gave the West a clear warning in 1973 when they temporarily cut oil production and raised their prices fourfold. Even the Shah of Iran gave notice to the West to promptly reorganize its energy policy, saying that in 10 years Iran would no longer export oil but would produce manufactured goods, chemicals, drugs and plastics. Saudi Arabia also urged the United States to develop additional resources before it was too late.

Yet the United States and its allies remained deaf. Americans, who imported about 15 per cent of their oil in 1973, increased that figure to more than 40 per cent in 1979. Last year the United States paid about $64 billion for imported oil — a sum equal to more than half the country's defence budget — upsetting the balance of payments, scuttling the dollar and stimulating inflation. This year the bill may come to more than $80 billion. U.S. allies have repeated this costly ignorance. The very survival of Japan and of continental Europe now depends on OPEC oil — about 80 per cent of their total needs.

Meanwhile, the 1979 defence budget of the U.S. totalled $115 billion; the Western nations combined spent about $200 billion on defence. Because defence theoretically means that rockets, warheads, planes, tanks and guns will be stockpiled but never used, that $200 billion was ostensibly spent to prevent a military war, risking all the apocalyptic possibilities that thinkers have always feared and forecast.

The ironies and political juxtapositions in this situation are striking. The oil-producing nations are acting as a gigantic trust against nations that enforce antitrust laws internally. Further, OPEC decisions are almost unanimous despite internal disputes; but Western nations remain divided, unable to agree to a joint energy front, trying to be smarter than their allies and courting their oil suppliers shamelessly.

COUSTEAU
. . . energy or war?

The time has come to face some facts: Energy has become vital to Western independence, perhaps even more than military defence, and fuel sufficiency will be essential as long as Europe, the United States and Japan remain vulnerable to petroleum blackmail.

Today's energy crisis is a road sign urging the West to take a sharp curve and modify its concept of civilization. Progress must no longer be measured by the amount of waste that is produced, nor by the tonnage of goods that is consumed. Science and technology must be used to find ways of doing more with less energy and less material. A grand design must be created aimed at total dependence on clean and renewable sources of energy (such as solar) 50 years from now.

During the next half-century of innovation, the energy problem must be approached with imagination and wisdom:

- Europe, Japan and the United States must adopt a united energy plan.
- Conservation must be the centrepiece of the project. It is estimated that voluntary and mandatory conservation can create more than a million new jobs in the United States alone.
- Hydroelectric and geothermal energy sources must be better exploited.
- All forms of renewable energy from the sun, wind and oceans must be developed according to long-range funding schedules.

While new energy programs are implemented, there must be protection for the oceans, rivers, lakes and ice-caps of our planet. Water must be put to work for mankind, but only if satisfactory rules are respected. Profits can no longer remain the sole criterion for decisions. Pride, love and joy as well as the future of humanity itself have no price tags.

Did PCs thwart 'jitters' tactics?

MONTREAL (CP) — Two Conservative cabinet ministers say the Tories have thwarted a Liberal plan to "give the jitters to Quebecers" by staging military manoeuvres during the referendum on sovereignty-association this June.

But Barney Danson, the former Liberal defence minister, has a different version. He says the planned manoeuvres were cancelled by the Liberals in the summer of 1978 for budgetary reasons.

Defence Minister Allan McKinnon and Supply Minister Roch Lasalle said in interviews published today by La Presse that Prime Minister Joe Clark asked the armed forces last November to postpone the manoeuvres because they might be seen as an attempt by Ottawa to manipulate the outcome of the referendum.

The exercise, code-named Rendez-Vous 80, involved the movement in convoy of 10,000 troops across Quebec to Gagetown, N.B.

Danson, interviewed later by CBC radio, said he was not sure whether the manoeuvres had originally been planned for the summer of 1979 or the summer of 1980. In any event, he said, they were cancelled by the Liberals during the summer of 1978 as a result of budgetary restrictions imposed on the armed forces.

If they were cancelled again last November by Clark, it must have been because the manoeuvres were reinstated by the Conservative government after it took power, Danson said.

Major W. K. R. O'Donnell, a Canadian Forces spokesman at the St. Hubert base near Montreal which serves as headquarters for Mobile Command, said manoeuvres were scheduled for last fall, then were switched to the first six days of June by "pure chance and nothing else."

Lasalle maintained the whole exercise was "voluntarily prepared by top organizers of the Liberal Party of Canada in order to give the jitters to Quebecers during the final days of the referendum period."

No dodgers: Trudeau

CHARLOTTETOWN (UPC) — American citizens who break the law, including draft dodgers, would not be welcome in Canada, Liberal leader Pierre Trudeau said in a live radio program Saturday.

Trudeau said he thought Prime Minister Joe Clark and External Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald "were very unwise" to get into the "hypothetical question" of who would want to dodge the draft and immigrate to Canada.

The two Conservatives have said they would not accept American draft dodgers into Canada. Their statements follow on the heels of U.S. President Jimmy Carter's endorsement of a move to begin military registration of young men and women, but did not go so far as to reintroduce the military draft.

Charles to Fla.

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles will make a three-day private visit to Florida in April following an official visit to Canada from March 30 to April 3, Buckingham Palace announced recently. During his official tour of Canada, Charles will visit Pearson College of the Pacific, near Victoria.

Drapeau careful on Games

WASHINGTON (CP) — Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau, in a cautiously-worded letter to a U.S. congressman, says he is discussing with the federal government a possible shift of the summer Olympics to Montreal from Moscow.

Drapeau, in a letter dated Jan. 30, was replying to a question from Representative Clarence Miller (Rep. — Ohio) about Montreal's willingness to host the Games if the International Olympic Committee agrees to move them from Moscow.

The Ohio congressman was the first to sponsor legislation asking President Carter to request that the IOC move the Olympics to protest the Soviet Union's invasion of Afghanistan. Subsequently, Congress approved a joint resolution and U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance asked the IOC this weekend to move, postpone or cancel the summer Olympics rather than hold them in Moscow.

Drapeau's letter notes that by the end of January the Canadian government had already started a study into the possibility of Montreal acting as host of the 1980 summer Olympics, using the facilities built for the 1976 Games.

CHECK THESE NEW BENEFITS AND OPTIONS FOR AUTOPLAN '80

It's getting close to renewal time for Autoplan insurance. The deadline is February 29th for the majority of B.C. motorists.
Although rates are up by 10% because of increased costs, individual premiums may increase or decrease because of changes in ICBC's rating structure and the introduction of Phase I of the F.A.I.R. program.
Your Autoplan insurance for 1980 also features some new built-in benefits for everyone and some new options you should consider for your personal protection when you renew.

CHANGED COVERAGES

1. INCREASED LIABILITY COVERAGE
Like everything else, the cost of settling bodily injury claims continues to rise. So, for your greater protection, we have increased the compulsory minimum for Third Party Liability insurance to $100,000 from $75,000. For the nine out of 10 motorists who carry more than just the minimum coverage, there will be no extra cost.

2. INCREASED NO-FAULT ACCIDENT BENEFITS
Recognizing the higher cost of living, a number of no-fault accident benefits are being increased.

- Weekly benefits increased to $100 from $75.
- Dependent benefits increased to $25 from $15 a week.
- Funeral expenses increased to $1,000 from $750.

3. SAFE DRIVING VEHICLE DISCOUNT CHANGE
A major change in the discount program came into effect last September. It waives the earlier requirement that drivers in British Columbia had to be insured under Autoplan for six months before they became eligible for a Safe Driving Vehicle Discount. Now, the discount can be applied without the waiting period and it is based on the owner's previous claim record. A one-year claim-free record earns a 15% discount; two years earns 25%; three qualifies for 32½%. This change principally benefits people buying an additional vehicle and new residents to the province.

NEW COVERAGE

INVERSE LIABILITY COVERAGE
In some U.S. states and Canadian provinces, your right to recover costs for damage to your vehicle through the courts is legally prohibited when a resident of that state or province is at fault in the accident. This new Autoplan feature, which is included as part of your basic coverage at no extra cost to you, provides for payment of your collision damage cost to the extent that you are not at fault for the accident.

NEW OPTIONS

1. UNDER INSURED MOTORIST COVERAGE
For an additional premium you can now extend your protection to cover accidents where the insurance of the driver at fault is not sufficient to cover claims for bodily injury and death. If you are the victim of an accident, and you carry this option you are protected to the limit of your own Third Party Liability coverage.

2. SUPPLEMENTARY NO-FAULT ACCIDENT BENEFITS
If you feel the current disability and death benefits offered under the No-Fault Accident Benefits schedule are insufficient to cover your needs, this option allows you to buy a higher level of benefits for an additional premium.

AND THE F.A.I.R. PROGRAM STARTS

Autoplan '80 will also introduce Phase I of the F.A.I.R. program.
The premium you pay may be affected by one or more of these changes:

- Sex and marital status will be removed as rating factors. This will mean a decrease of about 30% in the average premium paid by male vehicle owners or principal operators under 30 years of age.
- The first step will be taken towards removing geographical location as a rating factor. As a result, premiums will increase in some territories and decrease in others.
- The Safe Driving Incentive Grant will be discontinued because the young, single, male drivers who received this grant will benefit more from the new lower premiums
- An additional premium is no longer required for an occasional operator under 25 years of age.

If you have any questions, consult your independent Autoplan agent, or your Motor Licence Office. Be sure to pick up your Motorist Kit when renewing your insurance. It contains a handy pocket to protect your insurance and registration documents, useful information if you have an accident and details of Autoplan insurance for 1980.

Renew early and take time to discuss the new coverages and your requirements with your agent.

Chamber presses for gas line, now

By AL FORREST

Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Cedric Steele has called upon the provincial government to declare within 30 days that it will build a natural gas pipeline to Vancouver Island.

"This project has been delayed too long," he said.

"B.C. Hydro has had the inside track on this thing for years and it has been dragging its feet. Costs are escalating all the time. We must stop stalling this vital project."

Premier Bennett said last week the pipeline proposal is still being studied.

Steele said public hearings will be required. But they should be only about which company is going to build the line, not on whether a line should be built.

"The government must say now, within 30 days, that the line will be built."

Steele said few Victorians are aware of how serious the issue is.

"We have not yet had an oil shortage here. We have not had to line up at the gas pump."

But the oil crunch will reach Vancouver Island soon and the problem will be price and supply.

Steele said conversion to natural gas is the only action that makes sense for Vancouver Island and he urged contractors to make allowances for this conversion in all new structures.

Oil is going to be too expensive and will soon become scarce.

Electricity is available but costs significantly more than natural gas for home heating. For example, the cost of heating an average home with natural gas is 30 per cent less than electricty.

For commercial users the savings are even higher. Natural gas heat is estimated at only half the cost of electric heat.

B.C. has a surplus of natural gas and has had to cap several wells because there are no domestic customers for it.

Steele said two companies are offering to build a natural gas pipeline to the Island at no cost to the taxpayers as revenues from natural gas sales would cover all expenses.

The companies are Pacific Northern Gas, the sales arm of Westcoast Transmission, and Intercity Gas Utilities Ltd., which operates Vancouver Island Gas at Nanaimo.

Steele said both companies will have representatives at a public meeting at The Empress at noon Feb. 20 to answer questions about their proposals. The representatives are R.F. O'Shaughnessy, vice-president and general manager of Pacific Norther Gas, and Norman Didur, president of Intercity Gas Utilities.

There have been various estimates for the cost of the natural gas pipeline.

Pacific Northern Gas (Westcoast Transmission) in November said it could be done for $260 million, using a route from Powell River to Courtenay. B.C. Hydro favors several routes starting from the Tsawwassen area at varying costs.

Island spokesmen urged in transport

Cooper said that Victoria is a member of Western Canada's Big Five, a fact that is often overlooked by major companies. The five largest cities west of Ontario are: Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Winnipeg and Victoria.

"Too many companies in Vancouver feel that everything outside their area is a secondary market. We (in Victoria) are becoming increasingly important and it is time the word got out."

Cooper said it has been traditional for companies to put only investors on their boards but lately they have come to see the value of adding those with only a small investment but with special expertise.

"Companies ask me: Who can I find in Victoria who could help my company? I have no hesitation in suggestion names. I suggest Pip Holmes, Sam Bawlf, Allan Emery, Arne Lane — and many more. There is plenty of expertise in Victoria."

Copter plucks 19 from ice

TRENTON, Ont. (CP) — A Canadian Forces helicopter rescued 19 of 40 people stranded on an ice floe in Lake Erie, officials said Sunday.

The 19 were removed from the floe, about 75 kilometres west of Buffalo, by a Twin Huey after the U.S. Coast Guard asked for assistance. The other 21 were removed by boat, said Capt. Doug Cameron of CFB Trenton's search and rescue squad.

No injuries were reported.

Cameron said the Ontario Provincial Police also asked the Canadian Forces helicopter to be on standby after a large crack was discovered in ice near Port Rowan, Ont.

Deserters given amnesty

Times News Services

KABUL — In an attempt to reduce desertion and absenteeism in the Afghan army, Babrak Karmal, Afghanistan's prime minister, has announced an amnesty for the many of thousands of conscripts who have left their posts or refused to report for duty.

Deserters have caused a much greater attrition rate within the army than the insurgent tribesmen whom the military authorities are supposed to be fighting. Some estimates put absenteeism as high as 40 per cent.

The ministry of defence in Kabul, which now contains many Soviet advisers, has decided that soldiers who left their posts during the previous regime or who failed to turn up for duty, will not be prosecuted if they perform military service now.

In many parts of Afghanistan, soldiers have in fact joined the Mojahedin guerrillas while others have merely avoided conscription because they disliked the government.

Meanwhile, a rebel leader and reports reaching the West said today thousands of opponents of the Moscow-backed Afghan regime have been executed or tortured since the Soviets invaded. Some Soviet soldiers were reported to have deserted and joined Moslem rebels.

On the battlefront, rebel resistance reportedly was crumbling, with Soviet troops gaining firm control of all parts of Afghanistan except for the mountainous northeast.

A spokesman told the Kuwait news agency KUNA the "Islamic Revolution for the Liberation of Afghanistan" will announce a provisional government by the end of March.

Back in Kabul, a foreign ministry spokesman confirmed that the new Afghanistan government has stopped issuing press accreditation cards to Western journalists arriving in Kabul to cover developments since the Soviet-backed coup of last December.

Nearly half a dozen journalists, who flew in Sunday from New Delhi, were immediately expelled and put aboard a return flight.

Back in the United States, retired heavywieght boxing champion Muhammad Ali returned Sunday from a five-country tour of Africa.

Ali went to Africa in an effort to generate support for President Carter's call for non-participation in the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow unless the Soviet Union withdraws its troops from Afghanistan.

Solution near says Bani-Sadr

"American imperialism."

"The ideal would be a combination of the two," he said. "We have submitted our proposals, the fruit of our consensus, to Imam Khomeini, who alone is empowered to take a decision. We hope to get it within the next two days. If he accepted them, it would be up to President Carter to take a decision in his turn."

For the first time, Bani-Sadr said the hostages could be freed before the international inquiry was completed. Earlier, Iranian officials insisted an "international commission" would have to finish its work first.

"It would be enough for the United States to admit its responsibilities and to make an undertaking not to interfere with our affairs," Bani-Sadr said.

In New York, a UN spokesman said Waldheim was aware of the Le Monde interview and that he remains in contact with Washington and Tehran authorities, closely following the situation.

"The secretary-general's package remains a fundamental and basic part of the process," the spokesman added.

The new president, who has rapidly been consolidating his power while Khomeini recuperates in a Tehran hospital from his heart ailment, also complained the United States allegedly failed to grasp the meaning of the seizure of the hostages by calling it an act of fanatics.

He also said the Americans called his election as president a victory for a French-educated liberal over Iran's Moslem clergy, adding, "They were wrong in both cases."

"They still haven't understood that the occupation of the American Embassy by the students and my election are the two facets of the same coin. If they admit this fact, it would be easy for us to liberate the hostages in a short time, perhaps even in the coming days."

Tito develops new problems

But it was unclear whether his life was in danger.

A medical bulletin quoted doctors as saying Tito's recovery had been slowed by "digestive disturbance and the appearance of certain difficulties in connection with the function of his kidneys."

Fat saves

LONDON (CP) — A few extra rolls around your middle could save your life if you scuba-dive, says the British Medical Journal. Thin divers develop hypothermia more readily than fat divers, the journal says.

Dredging scandal convicts get bail

TORONTO (UPC) — Five businessmen convicted of defrauding the public in a dredging scandal who spent the night in jail were granted an extension of their bail today as their appeal began.

The most prominent of the five businessmen, sentenced last June for defrauding public agencies of over $4 million by rigging dredging contracts, is Harold McNamara, 64, of Toronto, the former president of the McNamara Corporation.

McNamara faces five years in prison for his role in the fraud.

The other four, who received sentences ranging from two years less a day to three years, are Sydney Cooper, 58, formerly of Pitts Engineering, Toronto; Jean Simard, 57, formerly of Marine Industries, Quebec; Frank Hamata, 52, and Albert Gill, 46, co-owners of Sceptre Dredging, Vancouver.

A five-member panel of the Ontario Court of Appeals ruled that, because of the expected length of the appeal, the men could be freed until judgment is brought down.

Gold price up

LONDON (AP) — Gold prices shot up to more than $700 U.S. in Europe today. The U.S. dollar dipped on most foreign exchanges.

At mid-morning, gold was selling at $716.50 an ounce in both London and Zurich, Europe's two major bullion marts. The metal had closed at $697.50 in London on Friday, and $688.50 in Zurich.

"There was only moderate business despite the rise in the gold price," a dealer for bullion brokers Samuel Montagu said. "The dollar eased on speculation that the central banks were selling dollars. This also pushed gold higher."

The dollar fell in West Germany, France and Britain, but increased slightly in Switzerland, Holland, Belgium and Italy when markets opened.

In Frankfurt the dollar fell from 1.7410 West German marks to 1.7405, and in France from 4.0815 francs to 4.07875.

Silver sold for $40.75 an ounce in London, up from $38.75 Friday but still short of the $49 record set on Jan. 18.

Hudson's Bay Company

In case you're wondering...

I'm a bit of a figure filbert and I was wondering about some of the vital statistics of the University of Victoria — like how many students, teachers, buildings and the cost of upkeep.

UVic is one of our larger post-war institutions which besides making a significant contribution to learning in the arts and sciences, also has big impact on the capital's economy.

It occupies 385 choice acres of former Hudson's Bay Co. land including all of what was once Camp Gordon Head for active and reserve military units.

Some of the army huts remain in "temporary" use and are among the 36 university buildings having an area of 1.73 million square feet distributed inside and on the perimeter of a ring road high above Cadboro Bay.

In less than 20 years it has grown from a few hundred students as a college affiliated with the University of B.C. into a full degree-granting institution of 6,500 full time and 2,300 part time students and full time faculty of 451 professors. At present there are 69 visiting and sessional teachers.

New buildings have been going up since the early 1960s, the latest of them a $3 million wing on the Clearihue block and a $619,000 visual arts centre. A $6.5 million law faculty is under construction and a $7 million life sciences building will be next.

Others in the planning stage are a $6.77 million building for human and social development; a $6.9 million general classroom and office block, and $4.5 million academic theatre.

Last year the university opened an $8.1 million university centre-concert hall opposite the McKinnon sports complex and swimming pool. There is a full-size track at Centennial Stadium, a reference and study library, four classroom and laboratory blocks or complexes, a student building with theatre, a gymnasium, an administration building and wing on the university centre, a services building, a commons block, buildings and grounds administration block, university house, faculty club and nine student residences.

There are 156 employed in the administration, plus 468 supporting clerical staff, and 184 tradesmen and outside workers.

To heat the entire plant costs $432,000 for oil and the annual electricity bill is $472,000. Water costs $60,000 and the university pays $12,000 a year in sewer charges.

The whole thing is supported by a budget which this year totalled $41.09 million.

Lawsuit looms as recreation man loses job

Former Central Saanich recreation co-ordinator Wolfgang Fischer said today he may seek $200,000 damages from the municipality for wrongful dismissal.

Fischer was fired Tuesday by Central Saanich council and received one month pay in lieu of notice.

He described the firing as a "big thing" and said he will have a lot more to say after he meets his lawyer.

Acting mayor George MacFarlane said: 'I have nothing to say at all, except he's no longer an employee of the municipality."

MacFarlane said Fischer was released, not fired, but then said he didn't know the difference.

Municipal clerk Fred Durrand said council gave the order after an in-camera meeting.

'A bit dicey' but planes flew

Fog socked in some up-Island airports and grounded the prime minister on the weekend but Victoria and Vancouver international airports experienced little difficulty.

"It was a little bit dicey Friday night and Saturday morning," an Air Canada spokesman said.

So was fog a factor when Arie Schaddalee grounding his 36-foot pleasure boat Nooitgedacht on a rock near Grieg Island near Coal Island on Sunday?

"I'm afraid not," Schaddalee said today.

He said visibility was a good two miles when he hit the rock around 12:20 p.m.

Schaddalee thought he was clear of the rock but perhaps, as one of his friends unkindly suggested to him, it was "a floating rock."

"I guess it was just one of those things," he added ruefully. He was at home today after being hung up on the rock for about 12 hours, until 12:30 a.m. or so today.

Then he had to stay up for much of the rest of the night to make sure his boat pump was working.

"I'd holed it on the rock, and I couldn't take a chance on the pump quitting.

Schaddalee said it wasn't one of those situations in which a boater could wait for high tide to lift the boat off the rock.

"I hit it at high tide," he said.

Schaddalee had high praise for Victoria React, a volunteer rescue group.

Nooigedacht? It's Dutch for "Impossible Dream."

A Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre spokesman said that although the fog caused several groundings, there was no serious damage.

"They just had to wait it out," he said.

Gov't adds fourth jet

The provincial government has added a fourth jet aircraft to its fleet at a cost of $2.9 million.

The aircraft is a Citation Two formerly based in Ottawa but is less than four years old.

The purchase will bring the government's fleet to four, two jets for flying ambulance services and two for general duty.

But hopes flying high for Liberals and NDP

MUNRO

CAMERON

KRISTIANSON

NEY
. . . candidate of conscience

By NORMAN GIDNEY

This time they say Conservative Donald Munro is in trouble, although he has increased his vote in Esquimalt-Saanich at every election and the riding has picked Tories in nine elections out of the 10 since it was created in 1952.

A seven-letter word called Trident and what appears to be a general trend to the NDP on Vancouver Island both look like trouble for the former ambassador.

But are the problems severe enough to erase his 14,000-vote lead and break the riding's nearly solid Tory voting pattern of the last 30 years?

Despite Munro's troubles and the confident optimism of the two major opposition candidates, Liberal Gerry Kristianson and New Democrat Bob Cameron, the answer seems to be no.

"Munro is well-established no matter what anyone says. I don't know what it would take to get him out of there," says a Victoria accountant working for the Grits.

Usually third, the Liberals haven't done so well since 1968 when David Anderson rode into Parliament on Trudeaumania and the environmentalist bandwagon. He was Esquimalt-Saanich's first and, so far, only Liberal MP.

The party hit bottom last May, after getting just 15 per cent of the vote. Munro won with 54 per cent and the NDP took 30 per cent.

"That was the lowest we had here in years and years," says Kristianson, president of the riding association and another veteran of Canada's diplomatic corps.

"My guess is at a minimum we'll get 30 per cent this time, and I think we have an outside chance of winning it. I feel good about this one," he says.

Trident Aircraft Ltd., the Sidney firm which laid off 107 employees and suspended work after the Tories cut off federal financing, is the reason for Kristianson's optimism.

"It's the thing that all candidates fear, a truly local issue," says Kristianson.

The bad publicity appears to have hurt Munro and the Tories. They've been forced on the defensive by a publicity campaign mounted by Trident employees, and both the Liberals and NDP have hammered away on the issue.

Opinion among the voters seems to be divided.

"I think a lot of people are realizing it was a tough decision to make," says Les Fuller, a retired federal government draftsman who lives in Esquimalt. It was financial suicide to keep funding the company, he says.

"As an issue it's dead now. I think most people realize that."

Sidney hotelman Dennis Paquette says people on the peninsula are talking about the Trident issue. The company's closure has hurt his business — six employees used to live at the Hotel Sidney which he manages and they're gone now.

"It definitely is an issue," he says.

Accountant Ray Moore, whose offices are a couple of blocks from the hotel, says about reports that Trident's shutdown have hurt the local economy: "I haven't heard anything at all."

There are a number of small businesses on the company's list of creditors, but the loss of the $40,000 weekly payroll hasn't made a significant impact on the Saanich Peninsula, Moore says.

About the political impact on Munro's campaign, he's not so certain but he seems to speak for many when he says: "Frankly, I'm rather tired of hearing about it."

Moore says it's better that Trident suspended operations now rather than later when it might have gotten a lot larger.

"I'm to a certain extent pleased that it's undergoing severe scrutiny. I'm quite concerned if it goes ahead and then fails. What'll happen then? Then we're going to feel the impact."

The Liberals are on the side of the angels on this one. The Trudeau government arranged $6 million in federal financing for the company, which the Tories axed soon after they came to power.

Even Munro campaigned strongly last May as a supporter of the fledgling aircraft company, Kristianson says.

Now with the Tory cabinet deliberately dumping the company, when they must know it will hurt Munro, "maybe Joe Clark is trying to tell us something," chuckles Kristianson.

Trident has given those who vote Social Credit provincially — the supporters of Finance Minister Hugh Curtis (a Tory MLA once upon a time) — a strong reason to vote against Munro federally, according to the Grits' analysis.

There is also the fresh memory of the divisive fight for the Tory nomination a year ago when Peter Pollen started the dump-Munro movement, but failed to win the nomination. That alienated a number of provincial Socreds who are federal Tories.

Students are said to be a factor because the voting will occur when they are in class, concentrated in one spot instead of scattered back home or at summer jobs.

Esquimalt-Saanich cuts through the University of Victoria but it includes the residences with 900 students and an unknown number who live off-campus in Saanich.

Several straw polls taken at UVic in recent months show eroding Liberal strength since last May and conflicting results on how the Liberals and NDP would finish today. But they all agree on the Tories placing third.

"I think the majority of students out there are going to go Liberal," says student president Marla Nickerson.

Very few students have anything good to say about the Tory budget and they are concerned about the threat to Petrocan, she says.

The New Democratic Party smells success.

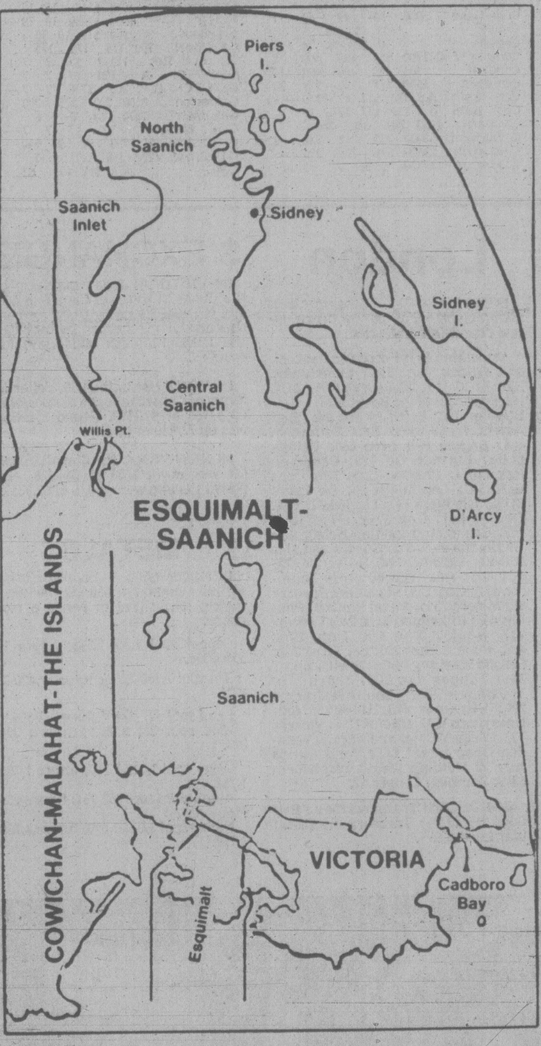
"My impression is that it's very much up for grabs," says Victoria lawyer John Brewin, co-ordinator of the three lower Vancouver Island NDP ridings.

Last time, he says, the party's campaign was submerged in the provincial election but now candidate Cameron is getting a clear shot with a much stronger organization behind him.

Canvassing by party workers is showing stronger support for the Mt. Douglas high school teacher, even in an area like Ten Mile Point, an upper middle class enclave which last time was barely 10 per cent NDP.

His voting record on Saanich council — against development of the Minnie Mountain property and the Royal Oak industrial park — seems to be the main factor.

ELECTION '80
THE ISLAND



Neighborhood spokesmen agree the NDP will do better and the Liberals will probably finish third but say that Munro is still unbeatable. One man who asked not to be identified says a strong residue of anti-Trudeau feeling remains. People will vote the party, not the candidate, to ensure Trudeau doesn't get the prime ministership again, he says.

New Democrats are building on a substantial base of support in Esquimalt (which went NDP in the B.C. election last year) and the northern fringe of the Victoria provincial riding, which is part of the Esquimalt-Saanich federal riding.

The overlap is about two square miles, territory which gave Charles Barber and Gordon Hanson several thousand votes last year.

John Mika, who was the NDP's provincial candidate in Saanich last year, says Munro was a good opposition member, carefully tending his constituents and their problems. But as a government MP "he hasn't seemed able to accomplish anything for Esquimalt-Saanich.

"He was silent on the tankers, he was silent on Sedro-Woolley (the nuclear power station). His position on Trident is clear. McKinnon's done more than he has."

The fourth man in the race is child psychiatrist Dr. Philip Ney, a candidate of conscience who's running a highly moral campaign. Last time he got 871 votes out of a total of some 54,000 but it hasn't discouraged him from trying a second time.

He seems to be getting a better reception this time, although he has no illusions about winning. Ney uses the election to talk about issues like abortion, the decay of moral and spiritual values, the breakdown in trust between people. It apears to be catching on with people.

Students at a UVic all-candidates meeting last Thursday interrupted him with applause when he said that politicians ought to return to the moral heritage of the men who founded the country. (Two of his great-grandfathers were members of John A. Macdonald's cabinet, Ney says.)

And then there's Rhinoceros candidate Robert Maddocks. The fifth candidate is treating the election as a joke. With his promise to resign immediately if elected and to place Petrocan in charge of public toilets, he has struck a responsive chord with voters dissatisfied with the offerings of the major national parties.

Happy died unknown but work lives

By PAUL MINVIELLE

Everyone called him Happy, but had he been born in another place or in another time it could have been different.

He could have been famous under his real name, Mingeriak, and his Eskimo carvings would have immortalized him.

He could have been as well-known as Kabluitok or Prime Okalik or Moses E9-833, and he too would have been in television specials and had his own exhibitions in the world's swank galleries.

Instead, when Happy died Jan. 31, only his family and close friends heard about it right away. His friends were the people he'd been living with at Mackenzie House, where recently-released inmates of the William Head Institution pause before the big leap back to the mainstream.

It was difficult for those who knew him to believe his crime had been anything terrible. In fact, he had been imprisoned for a violent act.

Like so many incidents in the far north, alcohol was the trigger, and Mingeriak didn't even remember the murder some 16 years ago for which he was convicted.

Happy Mingeriak was born at Lake Harbour on Baffin Island 62 years ago. He is survived by a son, Pudloo, and his daughters, Ninguirapiq, Kopa, Syla and Kilabuk.

William Head warden Arlie Bender remembers Mingeriak as "a very quiet person, never any trouble. He associated well with the guards and the inmates." Bender said Mingeriak was a functional illiterate and many of the inmates used to help him when he needed it.

She was an old friend.

"He was very sensitive," she recalled today, "but you had to appreciate silence."

She said an hour's visit with Mingeriak might consists of 45 minutes of no conversation. "But it wasn't an empty silence. When he did speak, he'd tell you some real gem."

He refused to charge much for his carvings; "He didn't want to rip anyone off."

He was an innocent in today's world who never ceased to be amazed when he saw his work resold for four times what he'd received.

He was a prolific carver (making up to $70 a day) prompting a fellow Mackenzie House resident who is also an artist to comment that Mingeriak was more craftsman than artist.

"He never produced anything big."

There are no clear answers, just as there's no benefit in dwelling too long on the fact that Mingeriak's life might have been far different had he not gone to a particular party one night.

It could be argued that had Mingeriak not been sent to prison, he might never have taken up carving, for he learned his art-craft behind prison walls.

They buried Mingeriak Friday. But his work — call it art or craft or what you will — lives.

FUEL ECONOMY is the purpose of these turbocharges being assembled by Catherine Phillips at the Garrett Corporation plant in Torrance, Calif. This specific operation, assembling the rotating unit and the compressor housing, is one of seven steps in the production of turbochargers for passenger cars. The device provides fuel economy and greater operating engine efficiency.

Noranda acquires new firm

TORONTO (CP) — Noranda Mines Ltd. of Toronto has acquired control of Maclaren Power and Paper Co. of Buckingham, Que., and has extended its takeover offer to Feb. 22.

Canadian GE

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian General Electric Co. had net earnings of $38.3 million or $4.69 a share in 1979, compared with $33.6 million or $4.11 the previous year.

Sales rose to $1.338 billion from $1.103 billion.

Improved earnings resulted from higher sales volume due to improved conditions in primary manufacturing, resource industries and commercial and industrial construction, the company said in a preliminary financial report.

THESE TWO 'towers' are parts-feeding carousels used in assembling smoke detectors at the Honeywell plant in Golden Valley, Minn. They aid in mechanical insertion of "electronic brains" into detectors.

today's markets

Toronto

The Toronto stock market was up sharply in active mid-afternoon trading Monday.

Nine of the 14 stock groups in the composite index advanced, led by golds. Real estate and construction had the largest of the five declines.

Volume of trading by 2 p.m. was 9.58 million shares.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said trading in shares of Dome Petroleum Ltd. and Kaiser Resources Ltd. was halted at the opening pending announcements. The stocks last traded at $70⅝ and $36⅜ respectively.

Trading in shares of Mitel Corp., which was halted Friday, resumed and by 2 p.m. the stock was up ⅝ to $22¼.

New York

The stock market in New York gave ground in heavy trading Monday in a pullback led by recently-strong oil, aerospace and rail issues.

The Dow Jones industrials climbed 66.89 points over the past five weeks, amid a mania for defense and natural-resources stocks ranging from oils to rails. Some traders evidently decided to cash in on those gains.

In the defense group, Boeing was down 3 to $63¾ and McDonnell Douglas lost 1½ to $42⅜.

Among the oils, Texaco fell 1⅜ to $39⅜ and Standard Oil of California dropped 1⅜ to $74. But Exxon rose ⅜ to $66⅝ and Mobil was up ½ at $63⅝.

Point-plus losers among the rails included Burlington Northern, down 3⅜ to $75¼, and Santa Fe Industries, off 2¼ to $69.

General Public Utilities fell ¾ to $7 in active trading. Last week the utility holding company omitted its dividend, and today an internal radiation leak was reported at GPU's crippled Three Mile Island nuclear power plant in Pennsylvania.

London

The Financial Times index jumped 8.3 to 469.1.

Industrials, golds and Canadian stocks were higher.

Earnings

Rothmans

Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd. reports its net income for the nine months ended Dec. 31 was $23.37 million or $4.26 a share, up 12.5 per cent from $20.77 million or $3.95 in the same period in 1978.

Net income from tobacco operations qss $14.93 million compared with $14.9 million in 1978.

Rothmans' share of net income from its controlling interest in Carling O'Keefe Ltd. of Toronto was $7.45 million, compared with $5.87 million in the first nine months of 1978.

For the third quarter, rothmans' net income was $8.76 million or $1.50 a share, an increase of 18.5 per cent from $7.4 million or $1.42 a share in the previous corresponding period. Sales were up 14.1 per cent to $248.39 million.

Carling O'Keefe reported its nine months' earnings rose 24 per cent to $16.41 million or 68.3 cents a share from $13.28 million or 53.8 cents ashare in 1978.

Net sales were $378.89 million, up from $318.96 million the previous year, reflecting an improved market share and greater sales volume in the brewing industry.

Net income for the third quarter rose to $5.29 million or 21.9 cents a share from $3.92 million or 15.6 cents a share the previous year. Sales increased to $124.49 million from $105.33 million.

Imasco

Imasco Ltd. of Montreal reports profits for the nine months ended Dec. 31 rose to $51.1 million, or $4.90 per common share fully diluted, up 21 per cent from $42.1 million, or $4.03 a share, in the same period a year earlier.

Sales increased to $1.29 billion, up 7.2 per cent from $1.2 billion a year before. Profits in the last quarter were $19.7 million, or $1.89 a share, compared to $16.1 million in the last three months of 1978. Sales rose to $477 million from $433 million.

Imasco is a conglomerate with holdings in tobacco, food processing, retailing and real estate. Imperial Tobacco and Imasco's retailing division showed strong increases, but sales and profit figures for food processing was down because of the sale of a U.S. subsidiary.

AGTL

Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd. has completed an issue of preferred shares, earning the company $200 million before deduction of underwriting commissions and expenses.

The issue consists of eight million cumulative, redeemable and convertible second preferred shares with a value of $25 each.

Each of the 6½-per-cent shares is convertible at the option of the holder into 0.862 Class A common shares prior to Feb. 15, 1990. Conversion price is $29 per Class A share.

HB Oil

Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd. reports a proposed 4-1 split in its stock and the retirement of S. G. Olson, president and chief executive officer.

The board of directors said in a statement that splitting the stock will result in a more diversified market for the company's common shares.

Hudson's Bay currently has 18,983,272 common shares outstanding. The split, to be discussed at a shareholders' meeting April 29 and probably made effective for shareholders of record May 12, would result in 75,933,088 common shares.

Banister

EDMONTON (CP) — Banister Continental Ltd. of Edmonton has reported a net loss of $2,745,000 for the nine months ended Dec. 31, up from the $2,435,000 recorded in the first nine months of the previous year.

The loss followed an increase of revenues in the comparative nine-month periods to $102.2 million from $75.1 million.

The poor results can be attributed to losses incurred by a U.S. subsidiary as a result of adverse weather, severe competition and operating problems, R. T. Banister, corporation president, said in a prepared statement.

Banister also said the corporation has stopped bidding on major contracts in the Middle East and will likely curtail all activities there once a project now under way in Iraq has ended.

Pacific Northern

After providing $337,500 for preferred dividends, share earnings were $1.22 compared with 64 cents a year earlier.

Natural gas sales revenue was $21,188,005, a 33.7-percent increase from $15,849,630 in 1978. Sales volume of 10.7 billion cubic feet increased 17.7 per cent over 9.1 billion cubic feet.

Ottawa urged to spark suites

WINNIPEG (CP) — The president of the Canadian Real Estate Association said Friday the federal government should spark more apartment construction.

Eric Charman of Victoria said construction starts for both apartment and condominium units in Canada now are running at about half the 1971 rate.

He said in 46 per cent of Canada's total metropolitan area, the vacancy rate for apartments and condominium units is less than two per cent.

"The situation is getting worse and nobody is building," Charman told the annual meeting of the Manitoba Real Estate Association.

He said the government should bring back the full capital cost allowance system for income tax deferral on real estate investment.

Charman, who has been in the real estate and mortgage business for 20 years, said he has not yet heard any new or imaginative ideas on housing in the current federal election campaign.

He said in an interview the interest rate situation remains unclear but convention delegates seemed more optimistic this year than last.

Martin said Brandon, which will be the site of next year's annual meeting, is experiencing an upswing in the real estate business.

Inflation rattles bond markets

By LAWRENCE MOULE
The Canadian Press

North American bond markets last week were shaken as never before because of fears for inflation and one Toronto investment dealer said the markets are in danger of destruction.

Michael Berry, vice-president of Mead and Co. Ltd., said in a Toronto interview near the end of a chaotic trading week that inflation could reach uncontrolled proportions within a year and the decline in bond prices appears to be irreversible.

"Financial managers are saying the risks of loaning money are getting so high that returns demanded now (from bonds) must reach double-digit figures," Berry said.

"Since the new year, we have witnessed a sell-off, especially in the last few days, which has never been seen before."

Canadian bond prices usually move in line with the New York market and by the middle of last week average bond prices there had lost 15 points in a month, an unprecedented drop, Berry said.

The markets rallied Thursday and Friday but prices swung wildly amid uncertainty over economic prospects and world tensions.

James Claydon of Pitfield Mackay Ross Ltd. said Friday, "The bond market this past week has been the most volatile it has ever been in history.

"We have seen price swings of five or six points in long-term bonds in a week. That has never been experienced before."

The price of government of Canada 9.5-per cent bonds, maturing in 2001, dropped to as low as $74 but bounced back to about $80 Friday amid hopes for an end to the Iranian hostage crisis and the apparent success of a large bond offering by the U.S. treasury at New York.

The 9.5-per-cent Canada bonds were trading at about $96 in June, 1979. At that time their yield was about 10 per cent. Bond yields fluctuate in inverse proportion to prices and at their low point last week those bonds were yielding about 13 per cent.

Berry said that although the bond market could see short-term upward corrections, the long-term trend since 1945 has been down "and there is nothing to suggest that it is ever going to turn around."

He said the main inflationary threat comes from huge spending deficits caused by North American governments which have tried to finance spending on social programs without a proportionate increase in taxes. Instead, they have inflated the money supply.

"An increasingly greedy and lazy society has been catered to by smiling politicians who have continued a monetary fraud to deliver an unattainable utopia," Berry said.

"What I cannot understand is why governments would continue to promote inflationary policies because they are destroying the capital raising markets they depend on.

"If inflation continues unattended, bonds will be worth nothing."

Berry said inflation is becoming out of control and could reach an annual rate of 30 per cent within a year.

"The rate is approaching 15 per cent in the U.S. and as we saw in 1973-74 in Britain and Italy, the rate goes from there very quickly to 20 or 30 per cent.

"And we have seen in Latin America that from there, it jumps to 100 per cent, then to 600 per cent."

Claydon of Pitfield Mackay Ross said investors are unnerved by uncertainty over how high oil prices might rise, whether a new arms race will further fuel inflation and whether the U.S. government will permit a recession of sufficient magnitude to slow the rate of growth in consumer prices.

"It is not so much the severity of inflation that is getting on the bond market's nerves as the fact it appears inflation is being institutionalized," Claydon said.

In the federal Conservative budget the defeat of which precipitated the Feb. 18 election, the annual inflation rate was forecast at as high as 11 per cent in 1980, 11.4 per cent in 1981, 10.3 per cent in 1982 and 9.1 per cent in 1983.

Claydon said, "If in fact inflation in the U.S. and Canada will run at 10 to 12 per cent for two or three years, there is very little percentage in people getting locked into long-term securities."

The poor market conditions have caused a decline in the number of new bond underwritings, except for government of Canada bonds.

Berry said, "Market conditions are so erratic that it is difficult to bring an issue to market and have assurance of success.

"It is almost impossible to price an issue because by the time you have priced it, the market has moved away."

Profits top predictions

THE CANADIAN PRESS

A preliminary survey of the profits of major public corporations last year showed much larger increases than had been predicted.

A check of 83 corporations shows profits totalled $5.245 billion compared with $3.461 billion the previous year — an increase of 50 per cent.

Only 11 of the 83 showed declines, and only one reported an actual loss.

Profits were up about 25 per cent in 1978, 12 per cent in 1977, three per cent in 1976 and had declined five per cent in 1975.

Significantly, many of the corporations which have reported their 1979 results so far are expecting another strong year in 1980 — although none is saying profit gains this year will equal last year's improvements.

Some of the best performances as a group were shown by pulp and paper companies, where 12 corporations showed a 59-percent improvement to a total profit of $609 million compared with $383 million in 1978. None of the group reported a loss.

Leading the profit parade was Abitibi-Price Ltd., up to $114 million from $78 million. Other major gainers were B.C. Forest Products Ltd., to $96 million from $69 million; Consolidated Bathurst Ltd., to $96 million from $59 million; Domtar Ltd., to $97 million from $63 million; and Crown Zellerbach Ltd., to $52 million from $36 million.

The largest single gain was reported by Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd., up to $110 million from $5 million.

Vic West retains lead

Victoria West managed to stay ahead in a tight race for the first-division lead in the Vancouver Island Soccer League by blanking Cosmopolitan Royals 3-0 Sunday at Heywood Avenue Park.

In other matches, Victoria Athletics clipped University of Victoria Vikings 2-1 at UVic to break a deadlock for second place and Meston's Auto Body edged Gorge 1-0 at Topaz Park.

John McGuire scored two quick goals — at 40 minutes on a breakaway and four minutes later on a chip shot from 20 yards out — to put Wests out in front. Bob Duncan completed scoring for Wests on another breakaway at 60 minutes.

Peter Zachary connected for Vikings at 24 minutes but Mark Robb collected a ball that goalie Ted Van Waes had bobbled to score the equallizer for Athletics at 36 minutes. Dave McCaig fired the winning goal for A's at 44 minutes after getting a long cross-field pass.

Meston's had most of the play through the match and Carlos Almeida scored the winner on a penalty shot at 84 minutes after Gorge goalie Jon Iruretagoyna had pulled down Graham Tolson on a breakaway. Mid-fielder Marc Bolli, playing his first full game of the season after a long injury layoff, came up with an outstanding effort for Meston's.

Malaysia Council will snub Games

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — The Olympic Council of Malaysia has decided not to participate in the Moscow Summer Games.

Council president Hamzah Abu Samah said the Council was acting on the advice of the Malaysian government to stay away from the Games in protest of Soviet actions in Afghanistan.

Scott sets mark

Debbie Scott of the University of Victoria set a record pace as she retained the open women's title and Randy Cox of Victoria Mercuries captured open men's honors Saturday in the 34th running of the Admiral Nelles road races at Royal Roads.

Scott scorched the 6,080-metre (just under four miles) course with a time of 21 minutes, 15 seconds.

Results:

Open women — 1. Debbie Scott (UVic) 21:15; 2. Cathy D'Arcy (UVic) 22.42; 3. Bonnie Hutton (UVic) 24:40. Team winner: UVic.

Drayton places 12th

KYOTO, Japan (Reuter) — Kazuo Tkatori won the Kyoto Marathon in two hours 15 minutes, 23 seconds on Sunday. Jerome Drayton of Toronto, the only foreigner in the race, finished 12th.

Martina devastating

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Martina Navratilova moved to the U.S. from her native Czechoslovakia, she suffered occasional pangs of homesickness that tended to affect her tennis game.

But now, with her family living in Dallas, Tex., she says her play couldn't be better. And the defeated opponents she is leaving in her wake would agree.

Navratilova, the top-ranked women professional tennis player in the world, thrashed the second-seed Tracy Austin 6-2, 6-0 to win a $125,000 tournament at the Forum. She then teamed with Rosemary Casals to win the doubles title over the team of Kathy Jordan and Anne Smith.

"I am more organized with my family here," Navratilova said. "My mind is free and I can go out and enjoy myself. Them being here has made a big difference."

Navratilova has lost only two sets in 57 singles and doubles sets played so far in 1980.

The singles victory was worth $24,000, and she earned $4,000 more as her share of the doubles championship.

A disappointed Austin said she had wanted to play well for her family, which was in the crowd.

HOW DOES A TUNE-UP SAVE YOU GASOLINE?

The engine is the power system of your car. When all parts function according to technical specification, your car runs with planned efficiency.

Naturally, engines "dirty up" through normal use. For example, a dirty air filter can waste up to 10% of your gasoline just trying to breathe. A faulty spark plug, or high tension wire can lose you another 8%, and an improperly adjusted choke can waste up to 30% of your gasoline.

These are just a few examples of gasoline waste that can be spotted by our "Gas Saver" tune-up. See your participating Texaco retailer for full details. The 15 point tune-up is guaranteed for the lesser of 90 days or 5 000 km and prices apply to most passenger cars.

The "Gas Saver" tune-up is another example of how your Texaco retailer is helping you save.

Ugly shadow rises over Olympic site

By WILL GRIMSLEY

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Is the modern Olympic movement doomed? Will the Winter Games, opening Wednesday in this little Adirondack village be the last for years, perhaps generations?

Such a somber spectre was raised Saturday when the meeting of the International Olympic Committee was formally opened with a sharp division between the IOC president, Lord Killanin, and U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, representing the president of the United States, on the basic concept of the quadrennial sports spectacle.

"If the basic principles of the Olympics are ignored," Vance said in his welcoming address, urging a shift of the 1980 Summer Olympics from Moscow, "the future of the Games themselves will be placed in jeopardy."

"Solutions to the political problems of the world," countered Killanin, "are not the responsibility of sporting bodies such as the International Olympic Committee but of the appropriate governmental organizations."

In effect, Vance, speaking for the U. S. government, contends it is impossible to play friendly games with a nation that is beating up on a neighbor — in this case, the USSR's invasion of Afghanistan.

"To hold the Olympics in any nation that is warring on another," he insisted, "is to lend the Olympic mantle to that nation's actions."

Killanin, acknowledging that the Olympic movement is far short of purity, said totalitarian regimes exist on both the left and right, and added: "I would implore ... we do not use the Olympic Games to divide the world, but to unite it."

Vance sees hypocrisy in such thinking and argues that "struggles of peoples to preserve their peace and independence will be contradicted and diminished" if the Olympics are held in a country involved in aggression.

* * *

The American position was greeted politely but coolly by the audience, which was largely Olympic oriented, and even U.S. delegates to the IOC felt Vance was impolite to bring politics into his welcoming speech.

To Vance and to his government, this was not — as he emphasized — sheer politics. It runs deeper than that. It concerns survival — not just for America but for the entire world. The White House has made it clear that further aggression on the part of the USSR conceivably could trigger nuclear atomic war.

The Secretary didn't raise that unthinkable possibility but he stressed in the strongest terms that there was no place for fun and games when civilization hangs in the balance.

Some may interpret this as over-reaction and panic. The U.S. members of the IOC, Doug Roby and Julian K. Roosevelt, did. But the same blase, don't-rock-the-boat attitude was present in 1936 prior to Adolf Hitler's Nazi Olympics. The world learned its lesson, or did it?

* * *

The Moscow pullout controversy has driven a wedge between nations and people, even U.S. Olympic athletes. The IOC is weighted heavily toward business as usual — on to Moscow. But Carter is hanging tough. He is hitting back where he thinks it hurts.

"The president is damn mad," a source close to the U.S. Olympic Committee says. "He has laid down the law to the USOC. No Moscow, not even if the Russians suddenly say they're getting out of Afghanistan. He sees the present situation as far more serious than preservation of a sports event."

The IOC undoubtedly will vote to keep the Games in Moscow. You can't insult a strong member. The United States and some of its friends — the number undetermined — probably will elect not to show.

In this stand, Carter has the overwhelming support of Congress and the American people, as shown in Congressional responses and public opinion polls.

Thus the danger to the Olympic movement. If Moscow flops, there probably will be no Los Angeles Games in 1984. Then perhaps there would be an Olympic drought like that which followed the cancellation of the original Games after they became riddled with graft, nationalism and commercialism. But there is hope that everything will work out for the common good.

In his address, Lord Killanin decried the expansion of chauvinism, commercialism and other evils that have crept in and promised that, in meetings this week, the IOC will go to work on restructuring the Games to the benefit of all.

Let's hope so.

Like illness, bickering lingers

Times News Services

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. — Nothing is placid in this New York State resort area. On the eve of the Winter Olympic Games, there is argument over Taiwan's eligibilty. But even the scurrying into the courts is overshadowed by the continuing and great debate over Moscow's rights to hold the Summer Games in Moscow.

The continuing furore threatens the very existence of the Olympic movement.

"A boycott is the best way to kill the Olympic Games," said Monique Berlioux, director of the International Olympic Committee, as the committee prepared to spend all day today discussing President Carter's request to move the Summer Games from Moscow.

Signs were that the IOC would reject Carter's plea, heavily underlined by State-Secretary Cyrus Vance in a controversial speech at Saturday's opening of the IOC session, to move or cancel the games if the Soviet troops are not pulled out of Afghanistan.

"We should try to unite, not disunite," Berlioux said.

The controversy over the Moscow Games, scheduled to open next July 19, is dominating the IOC session. Lord Killanin, IOC president, has said repeatedly that the Games must stay in Moscow.

More than 70 of the 89 members of the self-elected, self-perpetuating IOC are expected to attend today's meeting. Killanin delayed discussion of the Moscow issue until a maximum attendance was assured.

Robert Kane and Col. Don Miller, president and executive-director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, were to present Carter's case.

Most IOC members said they were bitterly angry over Vance's speech — a purely political speech which they claimed was unprecedented in Olympic history — and took the view the Moscow Games must be confirmed so the IOC can preserve its non-political traditions.

Meanwhile, in the "other" dispute, Olympic officials carried their appeal of Taiwan's status at the Winter Games to an appellate court in Albany, N.Y., today.

The appeal followed a decision last week by Justice Norman Harvey of New York State Supreme Court against an IOC ruling forcing Taiwan athletes to change their flag and anthem. Harvey's order implementing his decision was signed Saturday but then stayed only moments later by Justice A. Franklin Mahoney of the Appellate Division, pending the appeal.

The dispute involves mainland China, which has refused to participate in competition with any team from Taiwan that calls itself Republic of China or that uses the old flag. The IOC ruled Taiwan must change its banner and anthem. As a result, cross-country skier Liang Ren-Guey filed a discrimination suit in Judge Harvey's court.

On Sunday, the IOC amended one of its rules to stipulate that each delegation must be accompanied by its flag. Previously, the rule specified the flag of the delegation's country.

The opening ceremony of the Winter Olympics is set for Wednesday. If the appeal is rejected, the IOC will have two days left to find a solution and keep athletes from both parts of China in the Games.

The Winter Games will be officially opened by a 44-year-old psychiatrist from Tuscon, Ariz., who will carry the Olympic flame in the opening ceremonies. Dr. Charles Kerr was elected by the team of 52 runners who carried the torch 1,600 kilometres in nine days to Lake Placid from Yorktown, Va., after the flame was brought to the U.S. from Olympia, Greece.

On another topic, the compiling of tables showing national team totals of medals won in the Olympics was attacked by Killanin.

"I have continued to attack the chauvinism of certain aspects of the Olympic Gamers and sport in general," Killanin told the IOC. "We have not been helped by those who, for instance, produce tables of results on a national basis, contrary to our rules."

Those tables, unofficial and unapproved by the IOC, are compiled by news agencies, newspapers and networks.

Horrigan called Tankard triumph

Tim Horrigan of Victoria Curling Club wasn't just being cocky when he predicted he would win the British Columbia men's curling championship.

He has always had extreme confidence in his own ability and that of his rink.

And Horrigan proved that confidence wasn't misplaced when he won the Labatt's Tankard championship at New Westminster, Sunday, defeating Gary Sigurdson of Vancouver 7-4 in the final.

Horrigan now advances to the Canadian championship in Calgary, March 2-9.

For Horrigan, third Lowell Goulden, second Kelly Horrigan and lead Dave Smith, it marks the first time since 1958 when Tony Gutoski of Victoria Curling Club won the B.C. championship that a Victoria rink has qualified for the Brier.

Glen Harper of Duncan skipped the last Island rink to the national final in 1963 when he finished second.

After his win over Sigurdson, Horrigan, 28, said: "I've never yapped it up like this before but I really believed we were going to go all the way.

"I told the guys that if they supported me I was going to make all my shots. I didn't come close to missing a shot in this game. It might sound like I'm blowing my horn but it just happens to be fact. I could feel the win."

Horrigan took three in the first end of the championship game and never looked back. He advanced to the final with an 8-2 win earlier Sunday over Tony Eberts of Kamloops.

"For me there's no consolation in losing," he said. "We've had a great season but what it boils down to now is we lost the final game and that puts us right back where we started, with the rest of them losers."

Horrigan, who lost to Sigurdson 6-5 in an "A" semifinal game Saturday, handed Sigurdson his first loss in the eight-rink double-knockout tournament with a 7-6 victory Saturday night.

Earlier, Sigurdson scored two on the ninth end to beat Bert Gretzinger of Kelowna 6-4 and win the A event of the tournament.

The Horrigan rink is an amalgamation of two teams that joined together shortly after Christmas. Goulden and Smith were on a rink skipped by Goulden when the merger was made with the Horrigan brothers.

Goulden is the only member of the rink with championship experience. He was lead on Allan Darraugh's Nova Scotia foursome in the '78 Brier and he also skipped Nova Scotia's mixed winners last year.

Goulden is 29, Kelly Horrigan 19 and Smith 35.

There will be a reception for Horrigan's rink at the VCC tonight at 9 p.m.

Meanwhile, veteran Freddie Duncan of the Alberni Valley Curling Club captured the Island mixed championship with a 9-3 victory over a Victoria Club rink skipped by Murray Walker.

For Duncan it is his third chance at the provincial mixed championship, having qualified previously in 1967 and 1970. This year's championship will take place in Williams Lake Feb. 15-18.

A steal of two in the fourth end to give Duncan a 5-2 lead was the turning point in the game.

Walker defeated Rob Cummings 8-7 in an extra end to take the "B" final. Earlier Cummings had defeated Duncan 9-1 and Walker had eliminated Denis Heppelle of Duncan. Duncan defeated Heppelle 9-6 in Saturday's "A" final.

Playing with Duncan were third Sandy Cuthbert, second Wayne Reid and lead Trudy Eastman. With Walker were third Wilma Fenwick, second Steve Skillings and lead Judy Waslenchuck.

In other provincial men's finals, Rick Folk of Saskatoon qualified for the Brier for the third straight year, defeating Harvey Mazinke twice; Paul Gowsell of Calgary stole points on the seventh, eighth and ninth ends to defeat defending champion Paul Devlin 7-3 and take the Alberta berth and Jim Ursel, skip of a rink from the St. Laurent Curling Club, won the Quebec title.

Sports tonight

Trilec Juniors tackle Western Equipment Juniors in a Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League game at 9 in Central Junior High School.

At 8:15, Juan de Fuca Gulls face Lake Cowichan Baird's Trucking in a South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League game in Juan de Fuca Arena.

Television viewers can take in a college basketball game between Stanford and Washington at 8 on Channel 11.

Guy's quick move sparks Canadiens

Times News Services

"He's still the best — he was made for this game," Savard said Sunday night after Lafleur set up the winning goal in the Canadiens' 3-2 National Hockey League victory over Boston Bruins.

The Bruins outplayed the defending Stanley Cup champions most of the way and led 2-1 after two periods. However, Montreal pulled into a 2-2 tie at 10:03 of the third period as Mark Napier scored on a quick flip of a rebound on a shot by Pierre Mondou.

Then, the Bruins were stung. Suddenly, Lafleur went to the boards behind the Boston goal. He passed out quickly and Pierre Larouche, left uncovered, struck for his 34th goal of the season.

"How many players in this league can make a pass like that?" asked Boston coach Fred Creighton. "All he did was touch the puck and bing."

However, on Saturday at Montreal, Lafleur wasn't the story. Ivan Boldirev was.

In his first game for the Vancouver Canucks since being traded from Atlanta, Boldirev split the Canadiens defence late in the game to score and give the Canucks a 4-3 victory over the Canadiens.

Elsewhere Sunday, Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Detroit Red Wings 4-1, Chicago Black Hawks edged Pittsburgh Penguins 3-2, Atlanta Flame[illegible]mped Colorado Rockies 6-1, Philadelphia Flyers tripped Los Angeles Kings 5-2, Minnesota North Stars trounced Hartford Whalers 6-2, New York Rangers defeated Quebec Nordiques 3-1 and Edmonton Oilers and Winnipeg Jets tied 2-2.

"We showed a lot of spirit after losing (to Vancouver) with a minute and a half to go Saturday night," said Montreal coach Claude Ruel. "Coming in here and facing this club, we didn't want to open up too much early. We were trying to play safe, defensively."

Dan Maloney scored twice and Paul Gardner knocked in his 100th career goal to help Toronto rebound from its loss to Los Angeles the previous night and snap a four-game losing streak.

Goals by Rich Preston and Grant Mulvey in a 64-second span in the third period lifted the Black Hawks to their win. The loss was the fifth in a row and the 13th in 16 games for the struggling Penguins.

Guy Chouinard scored three goals as Atlanta pulled away with four goals in the third period in Denver.

Hawks crunch Cougars

Victoria Cougars stumbled into an embarassing ambush in Portland Sunday.

It didn't have to be as bad as it was because some warning was sounded Saturday night in Memorial Arena.

On Saturday, the Cougars skated with mediocrity but managed to come up with a 4-3 home-ice victory over Brandon Wheat Kings for the benefit of 3,593 fans.

Defencemen roamed out of position, not all forwards backchecked with any great tenacity, and the attack stalled and sputtered because of poor passing and an overdose of individualism.

The performance obviously didn't sit well with coach Jack Shupe. He closed the dressing room door for a few minutes for a "frank discussion" about the game.

But Saturday's was an enjoyable picnic compared to what happened Sunday.

Portland Winter Hawks pumped their Western Division lead over the Cougars to five points with a humiliating 12-5 beating before 5,130 fans in the Oregon city.

Hawks now have stung Victoria for 22 goals in the last two games in Portland.

And, on Sunday, no one could fault Grant Fuhr. The 17-year-old's league-leading goals-against average took its beating despite his strong performance. Fuhr, however, could sue his teammates for non-support.

Two of Portland's goals were scored from point shots when Fuhr appeared to be screened. Another goal came on a breakaway while the Cougars were trying to take advange of a Portland penalty. But in eight or nine other situations, Portland scored goals on second or third rebounds — when Victoria defenders were not in position to help Fuhr.

And it might have been worse except referee Rob Schick refused to allow three goals the Hawks claimed to have scored.

The Cougars had two good spurts of good hockey. They played well in the first period, coming out of it with a 3-2 deficit, and again as the start of the third when Victoria made a threat by cutting an 8-3 Portland lead to 8-5 before the roof caved in.

Most of the way, however, everything broke for the Hawks. They scored five power-play goals while fracturing Cougar emotions about playing well in Portland.

Portland's five-point spread nullifies, somewhat, Victoria's three games in hand. And the Cougars will use up one of those games, in an attempt to close the gap back to three, when they entertain Seattle Breakers in Memorial Arena Tuesday.

Creery snaps Olympic standard in tough Mardi Gras marathon

NEW ORLEANS — Mike Creery of Victoria placed eighth Sunday in a field of 2,400 runners in the gruelling New Orleans Mardi Gras Marathon and in doing so cracked the Canadian Olympic qualifying barrier.

Despite the bitterly cold conditions along the Portchartrain Causeway course, Creery ran a very evenly-paced race, averaging 5 minutes 8 seconds per mile for the just over 26-mile event to finish in 2 hours, 14 minutes, 32 seconds. It was seven minutes faster than the Victoria runner's previous best time.

Ron Tabb of the United States was first in 2:11:0, Rick Callison of the U.S. was second in 2:11:22 and Don Howieson of Toronto was third in 2:12:18. Gail Olinek of Toronto was first in the women's race with a time of 2:35:09, the third fastest time ever run by a woman marathoner.

Creery's time at the 20-mile mark was 1 hour, 42 minutes, 29 seconds, which is 1 minute, 40 seconds under the B.C. record for this distance.

His time of 2:14:32 makes Creery the No.6 on the all-time Canadian list and only the second B.C. runner ever to crack the magic 2-hour, 20-minute mark for the marathon.

It also makes him the second fastest of three qualifiers — behind Howieson and ahead of Brian Maxwell of Toronto — who have made the Canadian Olympic standard of 2:16:33.

It's Borg again

BOCA WEST, Fla. (AP) — Defending champion Bjorn Borg continued his mastery over Vitas Gerulaitis Sunday by pounding out a 6-1, 5-7, 6-1 victory in the final of the $300,000 Grand Slam of Tennis.

The win was worth $150,000 for the 23-year-old Swede, who has beaten Gerulaitis in all of their 16 matches. The 25-year-old New Yorker picked up $75,000.

Borg, who has won this event for the last four years, beat Guillermo Vilas in the semi-finals of the four-man tournament, while Gerulaitis defeated John McEnroe.

Gerulaitis looked tentative in the first and third sets, unsure whether to rush the net or rally from the baseline. He could not establish a strategy against the steady, hard-hitting Borg, ranked No. 1 in the world.

Ridley moves

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks have sold 29-year-old goalie Curt Ridley to the Toronto Maple Leafs for an undisclosed sum in a National Hockey League deal.

Wenzel collects two singles titles

Kirk Wenzel, whose near-perfect 289 game highlighted the two-weekend event, collected both the scratch and handicap singles titles in the 40th annual Victoria Tenpin Association championship tournament that ended Sunday at Mayfair Lanes.

Wenzel rolled a 168-221-289 — 678 series to claim the scratch crown and and his total handicap count of 54 gave him the handicap victory with a total of 732.

Fred Lobbezoo won the all-events scratch laurels with a total of 1,745 from series scores of 608 (team), 584 (doubles) and 553 (singles).

Lobbezoo also shared the scratch doubles crown with Len Hayley. He had a 202-195-248 — 645 series while Hayley rolled 198-179-192 — 569 for a total of 1,214.

Satellite Fish, composed of Don Norbury, Morris Kersey, Henry Loo, Andy McLeary and Brian Grexton, won the scratch team title with an aggregate of 2,820.

John Straw claimed the all-events handicap prize with 2,006 while Joe Frohlich and B. Fernhough topped the handicap doubles competition with 1,347.

Gary Day, Rick Restell, Greig Campbell, Connie McBeth and Brian Cooper, competing under the name "The He Bears", won the handicap team event with a combined total of 3,193.

Ford, Walter best B.C. team

VANCOUVER — High-jumper Debbie Brill of Aldergrove was named athlete of the decade for British Columbia during a Sport B.C. awards dinner Saturday night.

Brill holds a Commonwealth record of six feet, 5 3-4 inches and last year won the high jump at the World Cup track and field meet in Montreal. She also competed in the 1972 and 1976 Olympics.

Brill wasn't there in person to accept the award. She was busy establishing a Canadian record in her specialty at the second annual Winnipeg Tribune International Indoor Games. Her winning jump of 1.95 metres was .04 better than the Canadian Open record of 1:91. Bruce Ford and Pat Walter of the Victoria City Rowing Club were named the top team for 1979 in recognition for their double sculls victories in the Canadian and United States championships as well as a gold medal performance for Canada at the Pan-American Games.

A special award for merit went to another Victorian, Anthony Barker, who battled back from an attack of osteomyelitis, a bone desease, to win six gold medals and a silver in the tyro division at the B.C. Winter Games.

Downhill skier Dave Murray of Whistler was named senior athlete of the year and over-all athlete for 1979.

Murray, third-ranked downhill skier in the world in 1979, finished second in two World Cup downhill races last year and third in the pre-Olympic race at Lake Placid, N.Y.

Brill was runner-up in the senior category while gymnast Philip Delesalle of Victoria was third. Delesalle finished 12th at the World gymnastics championships last year, the highest finish ever by a Canadian gymnast.

The junior award went to boxer Danny Thompson of Maple Ridge. Rugby player Preston Wiley of the University of B.C. was named university athlete while the high school award went to wrestler Wayne Chow of Vancouver and Sverre Hietanen of Vancouver, a distance runner, was acclaimed B.C.'s master athlete.

Rick Hansen of Vancouver, who competes in track and field, volleyball and basketball, was named top physically-disabled athlete.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ◇	Pass	2 ♡
Pass	4 ◇	Pass	4 NT
Pass	6 NT

Opening lead — king of hearts.

It certainly seems reasonable to assume that, when two teams sit down to play for the world championship, the caliber of bridge displayed would be representative of the best.

While it is true that this expectation is generally met, it is also true that there are invariably a few hands to shock the faithful and make them realize that even the expert foot is made of clay.

These rare transgressions are not really surprising when one considers that each participant plays several hundred hands and makes several thousand decisions in the course of a long championship contest. An occasional fall from grace must threfore be accepted as par for the course.

For a good example of how bridge should not be played, consider this deal from the Great Britain-U.S. match in 1955. The bidding went as shown when a British pair held the North-South cards.

Why South jump-shifted in hearts rather than clubs or spades, or whether four notrump was Blackwood. I don't know, but the fact is that North-South wrangled there way into six notrump. West lead the K-A of hearts and Uncle Sam rang up 50 points on the register.

The bidding was equally odd when the U.S. held the North-South hands. North opened the bidding with three notrump and South responed with six notrump. The American pair were using three notrump as a gambling bid that showed a long solid minor suit with not much on the side.

East chose the jack of spades as his opening shot and North made all the tricks for a score of 1,020 points. So, in somewhat less than brilliant fashion, the American team gained 1,070 points.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Tuesday, February 12, 1980
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Efforts bring results, rewards — you are 'going places' and now you'll know it. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio natives figure prominently. Significant change occurs in connection with living quarters.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Spiritual values come into sharp, clear focus. You sense potential and you are better able to communicate. Journey is emphasized. Publishing, education and language command portion of spotlight.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You learn basics of special procedure. You get access to privileged information. Mate, partner or close associate talks about money and how it gets that way. Capricorn, Cancer natives figure in scenario.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent on recognition, restoration of relationship. Aries, Libra persons figure prominently. Go slow, lie low, be unobtrusive. If you wait, you win. If you rush, you learn an 'expensive' lesson.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You get job done. Older individual lends benefit of past efforts. Dependents show 'true colors.' Chance exists for new start, added independence, an opportunity for romance. Another Leo and an Aquarian could play key roles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You could meet a 'very receptive' person. Change, creativity, affair of heart — these are featured. Cancer, Capricorn, Aquarius persons figure prominently. One who does care will make it so plain — even you will be convinced.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lesson learned in recent past can be profitably utilized. You are on firm ground; know it, adhere to principles. You are in driver's seat, whether or not you are aware of it. Tie loose ends. You are due to receive offer which could lead to 'riches.'

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You get boost from relative who, in recent days, appeared to be indifferent. Be gracious, receptive and versatile. Change of itinerary could be constructive. Know it and act accordingly. Aquarius and another Scorpio figure in scenario.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Emphasis on getting the most from available material. Gain indicated via written word. Member of opposite sex aids in locating what had been 'missing.' In matters of speculation, stay with number 5.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Circumstances turn in your favor. You get needed support, financial and otherwise. Your perception, judgment serve as reliable guides. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons figure in exciting scenario. Take initiative, lead the way, display pioneering spirit.

PISCES Feb. 19-Mar.20) What seemed a 'missed opportunity' could be once more available. Know it, assert views, realize a wish could come true. Your position is strong — Business deal is on horizon and you could strike pay dirt.

IF FEBRUARY 12 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are versatile, artistic and often read more than one book at a time. You are an original thinker, but you tend to scatter your forces. You are conscious of weight control, more so than the average person. Gemini, Sagittarius individuals play important roles in your life. The number three is especially fortunate for you. Special relationships develop this year and are intensified in March and December.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. HUNTER

Peter picked up a strange looking instrument. "What's this?" he asked. "Something to do with your poultry?"

"A chick toe punch," Jake replied. "To identify a bird by a hole in the web of a foot. You may not know it, but they have three toes with two webs on each foot."

Jake smiled. "Not so many. They're so small you can't make more than one hole in each web. Figure it out yourself."

Parkland Panthers, sparked by John Ibbotson, toppled Mt. Douglas Rams 68-53 in a Greater Victoria High School Boys' Basketball League play Saturday.

Ibbotson hauled in 17 rebounds and fired 20 points for the Panthers, who moved into third place with a 4-3 record. Rob Balmer added 16 points for the Panthers, who were ahead 35-27 at half time. Rams are now 5-2.

In a senior high school girls' exhibition, Sandy Smith and Sue Walton scored 21 points each in a losing effort as Oak Bay bowed to North Delta, 63-61.

Cowichan Thunderbirds nipped Powell River Tartans 59-57 in a North Island Boys' League contest as Greg Walters scored 10 points and grabbed 10 rebounds for the T-Birds, who are in second place behind Nanaimo.

Bean sets mark

HONOLULU (AP) — Andy Bean birdied the 17th hole with a 50-foot putt and added another birdie on the closing hole Sunday to finish with a 66 and win the $325,000 Hawaiian Open golf tournament with a record 72-hole total of 266.

That bettered by one stroke the tournament mark Hubie Green set a year ago at the 7,234-yard, par-72 Waialae Country Club.

Bean had to withstand a challenge from Lee Trevino, who shot his way into contention early in the final round and then put himself out of the running on the 16th hole, when his approach shot landed in a bunker and led to a bogey.

"If we can play in weather like this, there would always be good scores," Bean said. "I got everything going, had momentum — and the 17th hole didn't hurt anything."

Three Canadians all collected cheques. Dan Halldorson fired a final-round 68 for a 281 total, good for $1,533. Dave Barr of Kelowna had a 75—283 and Jim Nelford of Burnaby a 68—289. Barr won $647, while Nelford won $635.

A crowd of 15,295 watched the final round of play, helping to set a tournament record of 57,395.

Local pro Lance Suzuki shot a hole-in-one on the 11th. His No. 6 iron on the 204-yard hole bounced onto the green and rolled in for the fifth ace in regulation play at the Hawaiian Open. Suzuki finished with 70-284.

Blalock hangs on

MIAMI (AP) — Jane Blalock bogeyed three holes and shot just one birdie Sunday, but still managed a one-shot victory Sunday in a $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

The Florida native shot a two-over-par 74 and finished with a five-under-par 283 for 72 holes, one stroke better than 1979 U.S. Open champion Jerilyn Britz and Debbie Massey.

Blalock relied on the five-stroke lead she opened Friday with a course record 66 to pocket $15,000.

Two Canadians finished in the money. Cathy Sherk closed with a 72 for a 292 total and won $1,212, the same as Sandra Post, who had a final-round 75.

UVic powers now 30-0

Now it is University of Victoria 30, "the Rest" 0 in Canada West University Athletic Association basketball play this season and even an outpouring of UVic reserves doesn't help rivals dent the awesome power.

UVic's talent, coached by the husband-wife team of Ken and Kathy Shields, continued on its merry way Saturday at the expense of University of Lethbridge.

Ken's men, the Vikings ran their CWUAA record to 14-0 (27-5 overall) by belting the Pronghorns 109-78. Kathy's women, the Vikettes and acknowledged No. 1 in Canada, extended their league record to 16-0 by defeating Lethbridge's distaff squad 71-45.

And in both never-in-doubt matches at UVic's McKinnon Gym, the Shields turned the reserves loose. Even while most of the high-scoring regulars got plenty of rest, the UVic still were to tough for the Southern Alberta rivals.

Vikettes, shooting a steady 49 per cent from the field and 92 per cent from the foul line, clinched at least a tie for first place with Saturday's victory.

The Vikettes boosted their season's overall record to 32-0 Sunday by defeating Vancouver Kirbys 77-50 in an exhibition. Carol Turney-Loos scored 20 points and Luanne Hebb 14 for UVic.

The Vikings, 46 per cent from the field, enjoyed double-figure scoring from six players — Tom Narbeshuber (the leader with 22), Gerald Kazanowski, Ted Anderson, Chris Hebb, Kelly Dukeshire and Bruce Hamilton — while the team's usual 1-2 gunners, Billy Loos and Reni Dolcetti, managed to combine for only 11 between their extended rest periods.

Vikings look for stronger competition Tuesday when they entertain Western Washington State in an exhibition starting at 8 p.m.

PRONGHORNS (78) — Perry Mirkovich 32, Don Richards 3, Drew Dzuren 4, Joey McLaughlin 6, Bren Ennis 4, Jim Duxbury 4, Kelly Goheen 9, Ernie Hill, Craig Hunter 8, Dave Adams 11.

The event was the first in a series of six to determine the club championship.

Results:

Senior: 1. Kelly Hunter (Montessa 348) 84; 2. Ray Little (Montessa 348) 95; 3. Gary Severson (Yamaha 250) 123.

Expert: 1. Martin Spriggs (Yamaha 250) 101; 2. Doug Moore (Yamaha 250) 118 and 8 "cleans"; 3. Ron Wilson (Bultaco 325) 118 and 7 "cleans".

LEE A. IACOCCA
Chairman
The New Chrysler Corporation

1. The first 30-day/1,600 km money-back guarantee.

If for any reason you're not completely satisfied with the new 1980 Chrysler, Plymouth or Dodge passenger car you buy, return it in good condition, with the title, to your participating dealer. Within thirty days or 1,600 kilometres whichever comes first. And get your money back. But not the finance and insurance charges you have accrued. It's that simple.

2. The first guarantee of no-charge scheduled maintenance.

We will perform all specified scheduled maintenance prescribed in the owner's manual for your new 1980 car or truck–oil changes, filters, various adjustments–at no charge to you whatsoever. For two full years or 40,000 kilometres whichever comes first.

3. The first guarantee of no-cost Automobile Club benefits with emergency road service.

When you buy or lease a specified new 1980 car or truck you get a membership in an Automobile Club for two full years at no charge. Subject to the conditions of membership, you are entitled to emergency road service, world-wide touring advice and materials, personal accident insurance and more.

Test drive a new Chrysler, Plymouth or Dodge at a participating dealer. If you buy one of our cars or trucks within thirty days–or a qualifying competitive car or truck, the fifty dollars is yours. Just return the test drive certificate with proof of purchase. Your Dodge or Plymouth dealer will give you the full details.

He has marked his 80th birthday and a pacemaker in his chest keeps his heartbeat regular, but working on the stage remains a tonic for Pat O'Brien. The actor who made his film debut in the 1931 movie The Front Page was preparing for yet another dinner-theatre engagement with his wife, Eloise. "I love the theatre, always have. You get a different audience every night, and each one has different reactions. You lose a laugh one night, then you try to get it back the next time out.

Sophia

The Italian taxman may not be able to get his hands Sophia Loren's husband, but he's already got his hands on her art collection and he's not about to let go. Miss Loren has lost a court bid in Rome to get back canvases by Rubens, Picasso, De Chirico and Bracque — all confiscated to settle tax claims against husband Carlo Ponti when she tried to take them to her home in France. The government says they're state property now — all $3.8 million worth.

Alabama Gov. Fob James' pup has expensive tastes — and he's very much in the dog house as a result. But first lady Bobbie James really did bring it on herself. She gave "King Frodo" to her husband for Christmas, and now he's gone and chewed the bottom off her mink coat. She'll have to send it away and have about six pelts replaced — says, "I had waited for 24 years to get that coat . . . I guess that's what I get for leaving it on the sofa."

Mary Crosby and her sister, Nellie Terk, who live in the New York Veterans Home, in Oxford, N.Y., are going to an unusual birthday party Wednesday. Mrs. Crosby, who is 91, and Mrs. Terk, 85, have a room just down the hall from their mother, Mary Snyder, who is 110 Wednesday. Also attending Mrs. Snyder's party will be her roommate, 97-year-old Catherine Frenchman.

Mrs. Snyder is confined to a wheelchair but she plays a mean game of dominoes, according to employees of the home.

Former prisoner William Ayre pleaded guilty to stealing his old jail uniform from his former prison. Ayre, 53, told the court in Oakham, England, he had trouble getting civilian clothes to fit his 266-pound frame, so he talked a prisoner into smuggling out of prison his specially-made jail clothes. The court sentenced him to 240 hours of community service.

Dear Readers:

Recently I published a poem sent to me by the participants of the Long Beach, Calif., Senior Day Centre. Its message, I thought, was worthy of sharing with my readers. The essence, and closing lines, are: "Just give me one flower today, pink or white or red. I'd rather have one blossom now, than a truckload when I'm dead."

The author was unknown, and I asked if any of my readers knew who had written it.

Dear Abby:

I read the poem in our local newspaper, and recognized it immediately as the poem written by a prominent dentist in town. He was R. Holmes Mason, now deceased 34 years. Dr. Mason was dedicated to his family, church and profession.

E. H.

Dear Abby:

The author of the poem you published was written by my brother, Herman B. Stokes, now deceased. The name of the poem is A Rose. It was set to music by Hallmark about 10 years ago. I was deeply touched when I read it.

Thelma Stokes

Dear Abby:

I read the poem whose real title is A Flower for the Living. It was written many years ago by my mother, Lela Snider. She sent it to her sister, Mrs. Myrtle Acock, who lives in California. Myrtle had copies made and sent it to her friends. Since then we have seen it published several times, always with "Author Unknown." My mother is 76, has had many strokes and is confined to a wheelchair. She never misses your column. Her eyes are bad, so she has someone read it to her.

Author's Proud Daughter

Dear Abby:

My husband noticed the poem in your column in the newspaper. The version you printed is slightly different than the original, titled: Kindness Through Life. It was written by Austin K. Snyder.

Virginia McMillan

Dear Abby:

You can quit hunting for the author of that poem. The correct title is, I'd Rather, and it was written by my father, William Nick Gikas. Dad, who is now 91, is a Mason and Shriner. He subscribed to the lodge publications, and mother was always cutting out poems and putting them in her scrapbook. That poem has been in Mother's scrapbook for years.

Mrs. Arthur L. Schmidt

Dear Readers:

Are your confused? Well, so am I, and as if this weren't enough, my syndicate has advised me that they received a telephone call from a 91-year-old reader of the Dallas Times-Herald claiming that he was the author of that poem and he wanted to know where in blazes Abby found it!

Our troubles came not as single spies

Last washday, I heard a commotion in our utility room and went to investigate. I found Win perched on the freezer, a vantage point from which she was investigating the internal organs of her washing machine ranged alongside.

"What's wrong?" I asked.

"It's the motor," my dear one said. "It just does't seem to take hold." Then she added darkly, "I've been expecting something like this."

"Yes," I agreed. "Wouldn't you know it!"

What I meant — what we both meant by this exchange — was that one of the immutable laws of householding had taken over and gone to work. That law may be stated in various ways.

Put less abstractly, it means that all one need do to have his home start coming apart is reduce himself to a state of brokeness by reckless outlay in any one direction.

We had plunged for an addition to our house. The project had left us, in financial terms, sucking wind. And now, when we could least afford repairs, the washing machine had gone on the fritz.

"That's the age planned obsolescence is supposed to set in."

"Maybe we'd better start thinking about a new one," I said without conviction, and mooched off to my workroom.

There I settled down behind my typewriter, and was presently deep in the world of the fictioneer, where washing machine breakdowns and other such domestic contretemps don't intrude. By degrees, though, it occurred to me that all was not as it should be. Old Faithful, the sturdy typewriter that had churned out words by the million on demand, was no longer imprinting 'N's. A type bar had snapped . . . again.

In the past couple of years, type-bars have been letting go at increasingly frequent intervals. I became sadly aware that Old Faithful had joined Win's washing machine in planned obsolescence.

I went out to report.

"Hate to tell you this," I said, "but it looks like I'm due for a new typewriter."

"Oh boy!" Win said. Then, nervously. "What next?"

She was referring to another surefire domestic rule of life, which may be stated thus: 'Troubles come not as single spies but in battalions.' Less poetically phrased, it means that accidents never happen singly.

"Oh well," I said, striving against odds for a philosphical outlook, "we can still eat. What's for dinner?"

"I'll fix us tacos," Win said, "with lots of green pepper and onion and stuff. That'll cheer us up."

She went to get ingredients from the freezer. She reached for the freezer handle, tugged lightly, and for no reason other than the law governing the sequence of accidents which I've already stated, the handle came away in her fingers.

"That shouldn't have gone," I said. "Seems to me we only just got it fixed."

"That was ten years ago," she said.

She began to set up shop for the tacos.

"Mind reaching down that casserole on top of the cupboard?" she asked. "It's too high for me."

The casserole was also a shade too high up for me. I got our kitchen foot-stool, positioned it, and hopped on board. My hands were on the casserole when the stool began slowly to slide out into mid-floor.

This time, however, fate was cheated. Win darted over and grabbed me, easing my fall so that I merely sagged across her worktable with a crunching of shattered taco shells.

That broke the jinx. Since then, things have gone better. No more failures, no more breakages, and reason to hope that another of nature's laws is working in our favor. This one goes, "After the storm, the sunshine."

Elderly share student dorm

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — For the last few years, senior citizens of this southwestern Ontario town have had an alternative to living in conventional old-age homes.

Adelaide Herr, who has spent four of her 82 years in the residence, says: "I often think it's wonderful that when I got old I could live here."

Lula Malott made the decision herself to live at Alma.

"There was no family influence. . . .

"We're under no restrictions, we can come and go as we please. We all have our own friends, churches and so forth," she says.

What Mrs. Herr treasures most about the residence is having her own room.

"At those larger places (nursing homes), where there are two people sharing a room, you always have to be considerate for the other person."

Valleyview Home for the Aged has been administrating the satellite operation at Alma since the fall of 1975. The school no longer has the demand for student accommodations that it had in the 1960s, and Valleyview saw this as an opportunity to provide another type of service.

Ivan Patterson, administrator of the Valleyview Home, says residents are allowed use of all facilities at the school. In some cases students and residents have formed lasting relationships.

"Most want to be able to do their own thing. They've lived their whole lives and don't want to be told what to do."

By Dr. L. L. COLEMAN

My 5-year-old daughter has been living on antibiotics for the past year and a half. From the time she first went to nursery school there hasn't been any consistent period of health. She constantly gets infections in the ears, fever and swelling of the glands in the neck. Her pediatrician adamantly refuses to have her tonsils and adenoids removed, even though this has been strongly recommended by two excellent ear, nose and throat specialists. Whose advice do I take?

Mrs. M.M.

Dear Mrs. M.:

Your state of confusion is shared by many mothers today who are caught in the scientific, or pseudo-scientific, argumentation that revolves around the removal of tonsils and adenoids.

There was a time, about 30 years ago, when almost all children routinely had their tonsils and adenoids removed at the age of four or five. Such promiscuous and indiscriminate surgery rebounded. Reacting to this, the pendulum now has swung to the other extreme. The result is that the excellent value of this operation is too often denied many children who would markedly benefit by a tonsillectomy and adenoidectomy.

These lymphoid structures were once considered to be functionless, valueless and expendable. New researches indicate that, during infancy and very early childhood, tonsils and adenoids may play a role in developing immunological properties.

Today, there is distinct conflict between the pediatrician and the ear, nose and throat specialist. In a way, this is understandable. The pediatrician assumes the role of protecting and, sometimes, over-protecting his young patient because of the newer findings. It is this over-protection that often leads to the long, extended periods of antibiotic treatment in an effort to forestall surgery.

The experience of highly trained ear, nose and throat specialists substantiates the fact that surgery, in many cases, is the ideal contribution to the child's health. Pediatricians and ear, nose and throat doctors who have been working together respect each other's opinion and, almost always, come to a conclusive agreement about what is best for each child. Their combined judgment, without any fixed, arbitrary attitudes, is the only way that the child can best be benefited.

(2) Attacks of ear infections, especially with fluid retained in the middle ear.

(3) Marked nasality of speech, and snoring at night.

(4) Bouts of impaired hearing after the ear infections.

(6) Difficulty in breathing through the nose, and interference with easy swallowing.

The size of the tonsils and the adenoids tend to recede as the child goes into the pre-puberty period. However, is it fair to the child to deprive him of his right to good health through the early childhood years because of the present conflict that exists between these two specialists?

'Third age' programming keeps elderly up-to-date

Another major indication that more and more of Canada's growing senior population are dissatisfied with mere pastimes is the rapid increase in the membership rolls of "third age" learning groups.

Janet McPhee of Third Age Learning Associates (TALA), based at Glendon College, Toronto, tells me there are at least nine such senior programs in Metro Toronto and she knows of others throughout Ontario. These groups have senior student bodies running into many hundreds. (Those responsible for similar adult learning projects in other provinces are invited to bring me up to date for their areas.)

TALA is a volunteer group with six years experience in organizing, improving and expanding "third age" learning programs. They are ready — and eager — to help others start their own senior learning groups. For this purpose they have set up a free information service at Glendon College. They have produced "How to" brochures of practical advice on planning, promoting and implementing programs for creative learning.

TALA tells me they already are receiving appeals from across Canada, from communities large and small — from an Indian Brotherhood, from mining towns, from other universities (Windsor, Laurentian, Dalhousie, Queen's, Victoria).

"Participants in programs enjoy intellectual stimulation, improved health and spirits," says TALA. "They are motivated to remain active in the mainstream of life."

In all parts of the country the needs of retired persons should be anticipated and planned for. Seniors should be encouraged and enabled to organize and carry out projects which will give them happier, healthier and more productive later years — keeping up-to-date with today's world but taking time to consider the past, too.

"How to" booklets and other information are available by mail, free of charge, by writing Third Age Learning Associates, Room 120, York Hall, Glendon College, 2275 Bayview Ave., Toronto, Ont. M4N 3M6.

To further the work of TALA a conference will be held May 14, 1980, at Glendon College. Designed primarily to assist others in forming similar groups, seniors are not only invited to attend but participation will be encouraged by subsidizing transportation and accommodation costs for official senior delegates. Write TALA, as above, for details.

The May conference also invites people working with seniors (in colleges, churches, libraries and social agencies) to attend.

Reversible rocker set

Here's another absolute basic for your patchwork file. Nothing could be more cozy, more simple to make or more happily received at any age, than this rocker set. It has simple squares with a random or diagonal placement color scheme.

The rocker set needs approximately 2 metres of one color of material for the ruffle, backing and some of the squares, plus about 10" (25.5 cm) each of two or three other colors for squares. Scraps may be used or you may if you wish, buy small amounts, color coordinated. To make the rocker set reversible, and for a change, choose a gingham or print for the backing so that you can turn the cushions over.

Another practical feature of these cushions is that they're washable. Because you use pure polyester batting (the thick upholstery type) for the stuffing, they may be thrown in the washer and dryer. I suggest using two or three layers for the seat pad and one or two layers for the chair back pad. The cushions are so comfortable, they will get a lot of use, and the batting will tend to wear down after a time.

How do you make the cushions so that they will fit your chair? The easy way is to follow this method: Take a piece of newspaper and fold it in half. Place it on the chair seat and crease it against the back and sides so that it conforms to the exact shape. Then cut it out on the crease lines and place the paper shape on the chair — trim where necessary. This becomes your paper pattern. Once you've accounted for the seam allowance, and allowed for the ruffle, it should be just right for your chair. Some people like to make the chair back pad wider at the top, while others prefer a symmetrical oval centered on the back.

Here's a simple patchwork lesson you will put to good use when making the Rocker Set: Following a simple graph, cut out the required number of squares of each color and sew them together in rows, using a ¼" (6 mm) seam allowance for each. Next, sew the rows together first pinning the cross seams so that they will be spaced properly. Once this patchwork fabric is made, the pattern is placed on top; it is used to cut out the chair seat shape on the patched fabric, the lining, and the batt. The same technique is used for the chair back.

Here's a clever way to make ties for securing the pads onto the chair: Fold 2½" (6.3 cm) strips 45" (115 cm) long (the width of your fabric) in half, right sides together. Place a long piece of string inside the fold and attach it at one end by stitching. Continue stitching the strip down the long end using a ¼" (6 mm) seam and making sure the rest of the string remains free of the stitching. Pull the string through as you pull the fabric, and tie right side out. Remove the string and stitch the end. Isn't that a great idea? You can thank Clara Latham for it. With it you can make the thinnest strips and turn them with ease.

This basic pattern will solve a lot of decorating and gift problems for you. Happy Patchworking!

To brighten dulled stainless steel sinks, you know to polish in one direction with scouring powder or an extra-fine steel wool soap pad.

Well, try the same polishing method on dulled, spotty stainless steel flatware. Polish with the grain, rinse and hand dry.

Winter or summer, don't throw away leftover green salad that's been tossed in an oil dressing. Put the leftovers in a blender, add a can of vegetable or tomato juice and blend. Season to taste, chill and you have a great "gazpacho" that saves a few pennies you would have wasted.

A pair of good leather shoes should wear through many new soles if you select a pair with resolable welts (known by boot makers as "Goodyear welt"). Also, buy boots that slip a bit in the heel. Without that little movement, you might end up with corns and blisters before you abandon the boots for good after only a few wearings, says the boot salesman.

Recreation man Jack Morgan loves his work

Today, with the official title of director of recreation and community service for the city, his responsibilities include not only management of the arena but also of the new Crystal Pool at Quadra and Queens Avenue, the Royal Athletic Park and the Royal Theatre.

He approves recreation programs for community centres and summer playgrounds; handles food requirements for concessions in the various outlets and at City Hall; works with groups wishing to arrange festivals and other entertainment in Centennial Square and occasionally Bastion Square and co-operates with the parks staff in scheduling events and caring for the Cameron Bandshell at Beacon Hill Park.

Until the McPherson Theatre Foundation was activated two or three years ago, Morgan also supervised that theatre's program.

And, after the city acquired the Crystal Garden from the CPR he managed it — wax works and all — until that new Crystal Pool on Quadra Street was opened in 1971.

All those programs, past and present, have been and are co-ordinated from Morgan's office in a corner of the arena.

He works in and out of that office from about 8:30 in the morning until five at night.

You will even find him there on evenings when games and various other events are scheduled.

"I enjoy my work," he says with quiet conviction, "and if you enjoy doing something, time means nothing!"

Community service is the keynote as far as he is concerned.

And he believes a part of that service is centred around efficiency, the elimination of over-lapping in the work and complete coverage where possible.

Assistance in organizing and staging major events at th arena and the Crystal Pool is also included.

"Its very seldom we do not have at least one national championship a year," Morgan tells you, "and small or large they help put Victoria on the map."

To cap that statement he speaks of two events already arranged for 1980 — the North American Indoor Speed Skating Championships in March at the arena and the world Lacrosse Championships in the summer.

JACK MORGAN — community-dedicated citizen

Sure, it means continuous work, time and energy, he concedes.

"But I have an excellent staff, both maintenance and administration.

"A good many of them came to us as casual help and liked us so much they have stayed on.

"At our food outlets you'll find the young-age group; ticket sales and box offices are usually manned by university types and our in-house staffs like security, ushers and doormen include the older-age group.

Teenage years were spent in Calgary where maintained that keen interest in youth through programs he provides at the arena, the Crystal Pool and in Royal Athletic Park.

"Those programs have benefitted thousands of boys and girls," he tells you with justifiable pride.

"You hear little about them because they belong to that vast majority of young people in this city who abide by the rules and give little or no trouble."

Ask him to take a peek into the future and Morgan comes up with a couple of major ideas.

"I'd like to see either a new building or complete renovation of the Royal Theatre as an arts and cultural centre," he says.

Secondly, the renovation and up-grading of Memorial Arena to stimulate interest of top-ranking shows and special events promoters, in coming to this city.

"At present they bypass Victoria and will continue to do so as long as audiences have to sit he played hockey and sold peanuts and popcorn in the arena at the exhibition grounds.

During the Second World War he was overseas with the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery from 1940 to 1944.

When health returned he went back to Nelson to become assistant manager of the centre his grandfather helped to build; then manager of that centre, a position held until he came to Victoria in 1961.

In the East Kootenay city Morgan was active in coaching many junior hockey teams. And since coming here he has on hard planks and in a non-heated building.

"With the proper accommodation we could easily sponsor three or four of those large attractions a year.

"It would require no more staff actually, to promote such events and to do the basic planning work."

With all these responsibilities — present and future — you would think Jack Morgan would have no time for extra-curricular work.

Yet, both he and his wife, Heidi, whom he married in Nelson, have held local and regional offices with the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Jaycettes, and they are active members of Grace Lutheran Church.

They have also raised a son and a daughter, both living now in Vancouver.

He is a charter member of the B.C. Arena Association and has been a regional director and vice-president of the International Association of Auditoriums, with affiliates throughout North America, Australia and in Europe.

Ask how he manages to fit everything into his busy schedule and he laughs and repeats that he enjoys his work and when a person enjoys something, time means nothing!

New drug aids transplants

LONDON (CP) — The dramatic increase in successful heart transplants in Britain has been attributed by medical authorities to a new British-developed drug, Cyclosporin-A. Authorities say the drug helps the new heart to settle and resist the body's natural defence mechanisms that might otherwise reject the foreign tissue.

16 going before grand jury in kickback scam

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sixteen political figures from Louisiana and Texas are going before federal grand juries this week to discuss the FBI's so-called Brilab investigation — a "scam" involving alleged kickbacks to influence insurance purchases by government agencies in four states.

Among those called to testify are Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards and Bill Clayton, speaker of the Texas house of representatives. Not all the public officials are believed to be targets of the investigation.

Brilab is the FBI code name for an undercover investigation in which agents used the services of a twice-convicted California insurance consultant to make bribe money available to labor and government officials responsible for insurance contracts, sources said.

Clayton has acknowledged receiving "a stack of $100 bills," but he denied it was a bribe. An Oklahoma state senate leader also was given $5,000 from agents posing as insurance company representatives.

The investigation also involves an attempt to obtain more favorable immigration treatment for Carlos Marcello, reputed New Orleans crime syndicate boss, the New York Times says.

Brilab is the second major undercover FBI investigation to surface within two weeks. Both have been reported before any charges were levelled by the government — drawing sharp criticism.

"We're kind of in the first stages of McCarthyism," said Richard Pryor (Dem. Ark.), a member of the Senate ethics committee, whose home state is among those involved in Brilab.

The other investigation, called Abscam for Arab scam, allegedly involves eight members of the U.S. Congress as well as businessmen and politicians in several states who took money from undercover FBI agents purporting to buy influence — for special immigration treatment and investments — on behalf of Arab investors.

Island fire claims second victim

The daughter of a woman killed in a fire at Chemainus two days before Christmas has died in Victoria General Hospital of burns received when their house was destroyed.

Louise Gibson, 55, was rescued before the house on the Chemainus Reserve was enveloped in flames. Her husband Herman and Constable Bob Bigelow were burned slightly in the rescue.

Misery pooled

RETFORD, England (CP) — Thirteen sad bachelor women have decided to pool their misery by forming an Association for Reluctant Spinsters. They've even thrown in a £150 consolation prize for any member still single at the ripe old age of 30.

Applications are invited for the above position. The emphasis will be at the elementary level and will be effective September 1, 1980.

Applicants must have a broad background in all aspects of music education, particularly at the elementary level. A strong working knowledge of ETM and Silver Burdette methods is required in order to support current programs. Other programs include instrumental, vocal and strings.

The successful applicant will be expected to coordinate the music program for the District, but the main emphasis will be at the elementary level and will include providing direct assistance to elementary classroom teachers through instruction and in-service.

Salary: Scale plus an allowance.

Please apply in writing with resume, support documents and reports by February 29, 1980.

watchdog richards report #156
Many thanks to the GYRO club for allowing Your City's Watchdog to attend the all candidates luncheon last Monday at the Empress Hotel. Congratulations go to Hubert Beyer (Thursday's Civic Scene) and to the Editorial in Friday's Colonist for the articles regarding Alderman William McElroy wanting to discuss the Gorge Rd Widening Project behind closed doors last Tuesday at City Hall. Congratulations to Norman Gidney and the Times for the new Civic Affairs column in every Thursday's paper. Many thanks to members of the Board of Variance Committee for allowing Your City's Watchdog to observe and listen to the appeals that were made before their committee last Thursday afternoon. Please continue to phone 383-6259 or write Your City's Watchdog C. Joe Richards, PO Box 154 for information regarding Municipal matters. Seen-in-passing: it appears that our new mayor, Mr. William Tindall, is driving a new black car to City Hall these days. Alderman Brewin wanting to see some policy on the books as to how City of Victoria appointments to various committees and boards are made in the future.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale, start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

SOUTH OAK BAY GLORIOUS VIEWS

At the end of a cul-de-sac on a private lane, a unique 3-bedroom, 2½ bathroom home that offers superb views of the ocean, mountains and south Oak Bay. The use of wood has been extensive in renovating to combine the "new with the old", and it has been done very cleverly with delightful results. The formal living room with stone fireplace, the separate dining room (both with picture windows and view) and the den form the older part of the home. In the extremely attractive "open" kitchen and adjoining family room with Franklin stove, the use of wood is most apparent and also on the second floor in the 3 bedrooms which also have additional built-in features and skylights that make the bright home even brighter. The basement is full with drive-in garage. There is a greenhouse and a "rockery garden". A truly charming and original home. Offered EXCLUSIVE. Offers on $155,000.

Kennedy loser, but happy

AUGUSTA, Me. (AP) — President Carter has beaten Senator Edward Kennedy in their first New England contest, but the challenger said he was satisfied with second place as the campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination moved next door to New Hampshire.

The president's men said it will be difficult to duplicate their Maine victory in New Hampshire, site of the first presidential primary election two weeks from Tuesday.

But the victory Carter scored Sunday is sure to be an asset in that campaign. There is no momentum in defeat, for all Kennedy's claims that the president did not match expectations in Maine's Democratic town meetings.

Carter gained 45 per cent of the Maine vote to Kennedy's 39 per cent, with results from about 50 Democratic town caucuses still to be tallied.

California Gov. Jerry Brown ran third, with 14 per cent of the vote, and said that represented a takeoff for his campaign.

Kennedy sought to minimize his loss, describing the outcome as a standoff and saying Carter had been expected to win handily.

Handily is in the eye of the beholder. The margin was handy enough for Carter's spokesmen, who emphasized the fact that it was gained in the home region of the senator from Massachusetts.

Still, Kennedy avoided disaster by keeping it close — something he couldn't do in the season's first contest in Iowa, on Jan. 21. Carter won there two to one.

"For us, in a way, it was a fight for survival," said Peter Meade, Kennedy's Maine campaign co-ordinator.

And Kennedy did achieve that goal, surviving to challenge Carter again in New Hampshire.

"So we will head to New Hampshire and all the other states, confident of what the outcome will be," Kennedy said.

Carter, at Camp David, Md., thanked his supporters and workers for the victory, and said he was sorry he hadn't been able to campaign. "I regret that international circumstances made it impossible for me to travel to Maine during this campaign," he said.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said Carter almost certainly will remain in Washington throughout the New Hampshire campaign.

Kennedy issues almost daily demands that Carter join the campaign and debate him, but Powell said the president's absence is an asset to the challenger.

"He's sort of got the field to himself with the president locked up in the White House," Powell said.

He said the loss was a major blow to the Kennedy campaign because it came in the senator's home region.

Perennial cuttings

hilda beastall

If you know how to take cuttings from the base of old chrysanthemum plants and root them to make new flowering plants you will be able to do the same with many other perennials.

Mild weather last week brought along new shoots at the bases of Michaelmas-daisies, the perennial asters that make such a fine show for weeks at the end of summer into fall.

Be sure there is a piece of the old root attached for this not only holds the leaves together but has a small supply of food to maintain the cutting in good condition while forming its new independent set of roots.

Cuttings may be set either into pots of compost and sand or large numbers can go into shallow flats of similar material.

Remarkably fine displays of plants having small flowers (like Michaelmas-daisies and similar) can only be achieved when at least three of one color are planted as a triangle group. So if you have space for only three plants, put them into a group.

To get rooting started at this season, the cuttings need either bottom heat or a heated glassed-in porch or grenhouse. A plastic bag or sheet stretched on wire over the cuttings will prevent wilting and hasten rooting. This last method is suitable for indoor windowsill rooting.

Between two and three weeks after setting the cuttings, the tops appear to be growing. Lift a cutting or two carefully to see new roots.

If you see white roots about a half-inch long, plant each newly rooted plant into a three-inch pot or tin-can with sandy compost. Keep them in same temperature for a few days, lightly shaded from bright sunlight until well established.

They can then be in a cooler temperature, around 10 to 13 deg. C. in strong direct light to grow slowly and sturdily until they are put into a coldframe or other outdoor shelter to become acclimatized to outdoor growing in the open garden by late April or early May.

The more common method of propagation is by dividing the old roots every second or third year, but the plants mentioned make very woody rootstocks in one year and produce inferior stems which also tend to be woody early in the season. I feel that much of the unsightly loss of stem leaves on the perennial aster and phlox is due to the lack of vitality of the roots. This trouble has certainly been less in the years when our plants were renewed from cuttings in spring.

If some varieties appear slow to produce new growth for cutting material, lift the old root and put it into a glass covered coldframe where new shoots will soon be noticed. Cover glass with sacking on a frosty night, but remove early in morning.

Take the cuttings as suggested. Two or three four-inch containers of cuttings each in a polythene bag, can be accommodated in most windows on the sill where a little sun and some warmth from the room is available. Move back from the glass on nights that are chilly.

Municipal archive urged

A report by two University of Victoria professors urges local municipalities to establish programs to preserve municipal records and to cooperate in building a central Greater Victoria archives.

"The most important heritage asset Greater Victoria has is its public and private records," say history professor Alan Artibise and Maltwood Museum director Martin Segger.

Compared to other regions of Canada, Greater Victoria's record of care for its archive material "is not an admirable one," says the report, which has been presented to area municipalities.

Large amounts of municipal records are stored where they are susceptible to slow destruction by moisture and dirt, they say in the 80-page report, which is the first comprehensive survey of all archive materials in the Victoria region.

"Lack of storage space is an insistent problem facing local government administrators and it is compounded by the absence of a standard records disposal schedule. At Esquimalt and Oak Bay municipal halls this problem is already acute."

Esquimalt has had to destroy large quantities of records which couldn't be stored in the municipal hall's two small vaults. The treasurer is also planning the destruction of large quantities of financial records for lack of space.

The Capital Regional District and North Saanich and the parks, lands and planning departments of Saanich have already filled the major storage areas to capacity.

The report cites deputy Saanich clerk Jo-anne Morrison, for her efforts since 1957 to preserve records of historic value in B.C.'s third-largest municipality.

Students have been working in the summer microfilming all administration files and recording the reminiscences of long-time residents, and citizens with photographs and manuscripts have donated them to the clerk's office rather than the B.C. archives.

The survey, carried out by students Beth Gibson and Marian Brown under a grant from UVic, didn't examine Victoria's archives because of lack of time, but in just the city archives office there are an estimated 187 feet of shelf space taken up by city records and 50,000 photographs.

"Papers, plans and photographs important to the documentation of Victoria's history are presently deteriorating in the basements and back rooms of various city-owned buildings," the report states.

To relieve the crisis, the authors propose a regional archives committee which would report to the library board with municipal representatives and professional advisors.

An archvist-consultant would be hired for a year to draft a model bylaw for dealing with municipal records. Stage two would include training municipal staff in records management and creating a central finding aid or index to the records of all participating municipalities.

New curriculum proposed

Greater Victoria school trustee Martin Levin today presented District 61 with a policy for evaluating student competency in English and maths and to make the curriculum more reflective of Canadian culture.

He served the board of trustees with notice of five motions encompassing school board directions for 1980, which he said should be adopted to guide decision-making at all levels of the system.

They also should serve "as a basis for development of curricula to be used . . . as a foundation for criteria for assessing administrator and teacher performance and as a framework for the provision of resources," Levin said.

Besides assessing competence in mathematics and English — both reading and written expression — the evaluation process to be set up by the superintendent should determine how to correct weaknesses.

The curriculum should more closely reflect the Canadian milieu in history, politics, literature, languages, pluralism and other areas, about which teachers should be canvassed for their suggestions, Levin proposes.

He feels the community should also be more deeply involved in the system, and recommends in-service staff work, more effective use of the community relations co-ordinator and administrators.

In addition, Levin said the superintendent should prepare a plan for supervision and evaluation of teachers and principals, including improvement of instruction and administration.

Finally he urges the board to commit itself to provide adequate classroom resources for special education and to de-emphasize spending that tends to segregate pupils with special needs.

Salmon rule reviewed

A federal proposal to require sports fishermen to throw back all spring salmon less than 20 inches long will be re-examined if a Liberal government is elected.

That promise was made Saturday by Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal candidate Gerry Kristianson.

Kristianson said, as a sport fisherman, he feels the policy isn't feasible in the Victoria area.

"In fact it's a very anti-conservation measure because it's known when a fish of that size is thrown back it only has a 10 per cent chance of survival," he said.

The Liberal government first proposed the throw-back regulation as a conservation measure, he said, but the party has realized it's not feasible in the Victoria area where the fish are generally small.

Kristianson said he checked with the federal campaign staff and was told the party's policy now is to re-examine the question.

He cited two alternatives he thinks would be better conservation techniques.

Fishermen could be instructed to keep the first four fish they catch, regardless of size, or else the government could require selective closure of fishing grounds for specified periods, he said.

Pianist skill grows

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Gifted pianists are not a rarity, as those with serious ambitions toward the concert platform quickly discover.

By the time they have been accepted in the important advanced study centres — London, New York, Vienna — they are what one might describe as semi-finalists in one of the world's most thronged and intense competitions.

To become a finalist in this striving for a place at the top on the international concert stage, the pianist must have some quite special quality.

On Sunday, the Victoria Musical Art Society presented young and gifted Walter Prossnitz in recital. Victoria-born and a student for many years of Robin Wood, he is now enrolled at the Vienna Academy and is currently at home to fulfil engagements, including one with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

Prossnitz has been an interesting and often exciting performer from the beginning but Sunday's recital suggests that these qualities are not, as is sometimes the case, evanescent. They are in Walter's case dependable and with his growing maturity, they are deepening and broadening.

No one can predict surely the future for such promising artistry; it is only possible to say that for Prossnitz, everything he can bring to his pursuit in persistence and application through further years of study should prove immensely rewarding.

His program for the well-attended concert was romantic and well chosen. He began with the Schubert Sonata in A Major, D 959, a rich product of the composer's last year.

His interpretation brought into fine focus the vitality, the warmth and poetic intuition of the sonata's four movements. The Andantino was limpid and beautifully phrased, the Allegros were assured, nimble and vibrant in tone.

The refinement and sensitivity of the pianist's artistry shone forth in four of Chopin's Mazurkas; the delicacy of Opus 17, No.4 was exquisitely portrayed while Opus 33, No.2 and No.4 revealed his minute responsiveness not only to mood but to the proportions within the genre.

An already impressive command and range of tonal color was notable in his performance of Schumann's vivid Carnaval. Technically adroit and authoritative, there was in evidence a potent ability of both intellect and emotion, in presenting the various contrasted episodes with imagination and taste.

96th YEAR, No. 204 ★ ★ ★ VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1980 20 CENTS DAILY, 30 CENTS SATURDAY

They're in the home stretch!

ANTI-SOVIET PROTESTERS listen to External Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald outside Toronto city hall Saturday where moments before some of the protestors clashed with Marxist-Leninist picketers in a placard-swinging melee. The leftists carried banners decrying Canadian, American and Soviet imperialism while MacDonald and other speakers denounced the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and treatment of dissidents. MacDonald said Canada needs military clout to deal with the Soviet Union and added that a Tory government favored beefing up Canada's commitment to NATO.

By The Canadian Press

After taking Sunday off to recharge their batteries, leaders of the major political parties charge into the home stretch of the Feb. 18 federal election campaign today.

It was to be the last rest for any of them until election day as they criss-cross the country in search of votes, but concentrating on voter-rich southern Ontario where most observers expect the election to be won or lost.

Clark's biggest task is to overcome a series of opinion polls that throughout the campaign have shown his party trailing the Liberals by a wide margin and himself trailing both Trudeau and Broadbent as the people's choice for leader.

He has consistently played down the value of such polls, saying the only important one will be held Feb. 18, while maintaining that he and his workers remain confident the party will form a majority government after the vote.

Trudeau and his advisers are faced with an entirely different problem — overconfidence — much as they did in 1972 when they thought they had an easy win over the Progressive Conservatives then led by Robert Standield. They coasted home in that one, but to a minority rather than the majority they expected.

The most recent of the polls shows the Liberals with 48 per cent of committed voters compared with 31 per cent for the Conservatives and 20 per cent for the NDP.

So Trudeau this week will throw off the shackles the party has had on him throughout the campaign so far and will attempt to imbue his workers with a renewed sense of urgency, counting down the days left in the campaign.

Maintaining his position as power-broker in the next Parliament is Broadbent's task, hoping to form a strong enough bloc in a minority government to control the direction it takes.

His consistent theme since the government was defeated Dec. 13 is that the Liberals showed they couldn't govern in 11 years of trying, the Conservatives showed it in seven months and now its time the NDP had a chance to prove its worth.

Clark is in Vancouver, Saskatoon and Winnipeg today while Trudeau hits Quebec City, Levis, Que., and Toronto and Broadbent visits Toronto.

Meanwhile, a poll conducted for FP News Services and the Toronto Sun by National Polling Trends indicates that if voting patterns of the past prevail — and if there are no dramatic campaign upsets — Canadians will almost certainly have a minority, or perhaps majority, Liberal government after the Feb. 18 general election.

The poll indicates a strong likelihood of the Liberals picking up a majority of Metro Toronto's 23 seats. In every election in recent history — with the exception of 1962 — Toronto has given a majority of its seats to the party that carried the country. That is why the area is regarded as critical by all parties; it is the national bellwether. It is also the hub of the southern Ontario electoral region.

Dental fee hike of 12% urged

A general fee increase of 12 per cent for dental work plus a surcharge of up to $3 per filling has been recommended to B.C. dentists by the provincial college of dental surgeons.

President Dr. Ted Ramage of Vancouver said today the fee increase will take effect March 1. It is a recommended fee guide, but dentists are not bound to follow it.

The filling surcharge was imposed for the first time because of the rapidly rising price of silver. Dr. Ramage said it may be eliminated — or increased — depending on further fluctuations in the price of the precious metal.

"We wanted to have the option of putting it up and down without interfering with our fee guide," said Dr. Ramage.

The new fee guide will put the cost of an average six-month checkup and cleaning of teeth for an adult to $35.60. A large filling in a permanent molar for an adult will cost $35, plus a $3 surcharge.

A medium-sized filling in the same tooth would run about $25 plus $2 and a small filling would be $15 plus $1.50, he said.

Dr. Ramage said the new fee guide usually takes effect Jan. 1 each year, but for a variety of reasons, it was postponed to March 1 this year. Measured year over year, the new guide calls for an increase of 10 per cent but as of March 1 it will amount to a 12 per cent hike.

The college has conducted an intensive study over the last two years of the costs associated with the profession, he said, which has determined that a dentist's costs have risen 26 per cent since 1978 due to inflation, rising interest rates and the cost of supplies.

Scores more may get parole

By DEREK SIDENIUS

Scores of prisoners in provincial jails may wind up serving the balance of their sentences in the community on parole when the new B.C. Parole Board starts operating.

The board, set up last October, is expected to begin processing parole applications later this month.

While it's not known just how many inmates will qualify, prison officials say the reconstituted board will have a tremendous impact on the overcrowded, over burdened provincial corrections system.

Bill Jack, regional director of provincial corrections on Vancouver Island, said in an interview he welcomes the move and hopes the new board will take an aggressive approach.

He noted the majority of offenders on the Island are serving sentences of less than six months and "the majority of those could be functioning in the community if we had a parole board functioning."

The savings to the taxpayers would be substantial. It costs upwards of $16,000 a year to keep a man in jail.

Jack said once an inmate has served a third of his sentence he will be entitled to apply for parole. In cases where the inmate has been convicted of a violent offence the minimum waiting period is half the sentence.

Until now practically all paroles have been handled by the National Parole Board.

The only exceptions were cases involving young offenders between 17 and 21 sentenced to indefinite or indeterminant sentences. Paroles in those cases were decided by the provincial board.

The national board has traditionally concentrated more on the federal institutions, where persons sentenced to more than two years are sent.

Because of that inmates in provincial centres felt they were being ignored. Early release was often only possible by way of a temporary absence pass.

When the federal government abolished indeterminant sentences last year, the decision was made to expand not only the role of the provincial parole boards but its size too.

The former six-man board is expected to have as many as 20 to 28 members drawn from the community and be responsible for making decisions in each of the six corrections regions in the province.

The new board has jurisdiction over all cases except where an inmate is serving a life or commuted death sentence or has been deemed a habitual criminal or dangerous sexual offender. Those matters remain under the federal board.

The supervision of the parole program rests with the provincial corrections branch. Last November the branch invited the John Howard Societies in B.C. to take over or share in the reponsibility of running the program.

But the society members haven't exactly rushed in to accept the offer.

As Willie Blonde, executive director of the John Howard Society of Vancouver Island explained, there is apprehension over what effect the parole work would have on other society programs.

The Island group held a weekend forum at the University of Victoria to discuss the pros and cons of making the move.

Coflin said the society opted out of parole work three years ago and doesn't regret the decision as parole supervision was felt inappropriate aims.

The local society members will decide whether to take up the corrections branch offer at its March general meeting.

Tide grip fatal to scuba diver

Sidney RCMP said John Warren Stelck of 979 Cloverdale was diving with a companion, Jerome Hunter, 27, of 1722 Sparwood, when he was caught in a strong tide and swept to his death.

Hunter told police he and Stelck had been diving near Strong Tide Island and were making their way to shore when he suddenly realized his companion was not with him.

He searched unsuccessfully and called for help from two women who were diving for abalone.

Trudy Carson, 26, and Maria Byrne, 23, both of the Victoria area, found Stelck's body on the bottom, got him to the surface where they hauled him into their boat and brought him to shore at the foot of Baynes Road.

Police said the women applied artifical respiration but were unable to revive Stelck.

A doctor living nearby was called and pronounced the diver dead at the scene at about 5 p.m.

Police said Stelck was a qualified scuba diver but had no experience in open-water dives.

Coroner John Dravidge has ordered an autopsy and depending on the results will decide whether to hold an inquest or inquiry.

Hostages freedom near if compromise accepted

United Press International

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said Monday, the 50 American hostages in their 100th day of captivity might be freed "perhaps even in the coming days" if President Carter and Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini accept his compromise proposals.

In an interview published in Paris, the president said his plan was sent to Khomeini and he expected an answer within two days from the ailing 79-year-old religious leader. Khomeini referred to America as a "criminal" in a speech Monday, but said it might be possible to establish "ordinary relations" with the United States in the future.

In Tehran, more than 2 million people turned out for a military parade and celebration marking the first anniversary of the Islamic revolution that overthrew Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's last prime minister and ushered in Khomeini's revolutionary regime, Iran state radio said.

The radio, monitored by the BBC in London, said that due to the rush of the crowd in Azadi Square, a reviewing stand collapsed and 67 people suffered minor injuries. Neither Bani-Sadr nor PLO leader Yasser Arafat, who attened the festivities, were harmed.

Asked what were Iran's condition for the liberation of the 50 American hostages in the U.S. Embassy, Bani-Sadr said in the interview with the Paris newspaper Le Monde:

"A self-criticism in a due form concerning the crimes which they had committed in Iran during a quarter century, and the recognition of our right to win the extradition of the shah and the restitution of his fortune. We are so sure of our case, that we are ready to accept in advance the findings of an international investigation."

In Washington, State Department officials said they found the Bani-Sadr interview interesting "but murky." The officials said that the terms of reference have not been established and it is not certain what the Iranian president means by "self-criticism" by the United States.

Bani-Sadr did not disclose how Iran wanted the international investigation of the shah's alleged crimes to be carried out. He said he personally favored a merger of proposals by UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim for a UN inquiry and a parallel suggestion by former Irish Doreign Minister Sean MacBride for a new Nuremberg-style tribunal to judge

Where's voice of Victoria?

By AL FORREST

The Victoria community is paying a heavy economic price because it is not adequately represented on boards of directors of local transportation companies, Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce past president Mel Cooper said today.

"Transportation is vital to Vancouver Island and yet we have almost no voice in it at all."

Much of the current hassle over the replacement for the Marguerite, for example, could have been avoided if Victoria had a representative on the board.

The board consists of Transportation Minister Alex Fraser of the Cariboo riding, president Arthur Elworthy of Vancouver and three other directors, all of Vancouver.

Cooper said the provincial government did recognize the need for local input but only through an advisory committee, of which Cooper was a member.

"Unfortunately none of the recommendations were acted upon. It was a frustrating experience. Without representation on the board we had no real influence on policy and Victoria is paying the price."

Cooper said the advisory committee in April, 1979, strongly urged the board to find a replacement for the Marguerite.

"Nothing was done and now we are stuck with the Queen of Prince Rupert. The community is making the best of it because we have to but it can only be a temporary thing until we can find a suitable vessel."

Cooper said there has been no action on other recommendations for a longer sailing schedule, including spring and fall, not just the summer months. Scores of other marketing ideas also have been ignored.

"No one expects all ideas to be accepted but the point is our recommendations were never seriously considered. We can see now we needed representation at the board level."

In addition, the B.C. Ferries Corp., which provides a vital link for the Island, has only one Victorian among its seven directors. There is a second Vancouver Island representative, from Port Hardy.

As for private enterprise, Cooper said he believes he is the single Victoria director. He has recently been appointed to the board of Airwest Airlines.

There is no Victoria director, he said, on Pacific Western Airlines or Air Canada, although Victoria is an important market, especially for PWA.
